The Old World Community FAQ

Generated on 2026-10-18

Contents

0 Faction Rules 4
Arcane Journal: Armies of Grand Cathay 5
Arcane Journal: Beastmen Brayherds 6
Arcane Journal: Dwarfen Mountain Holds 7
Arcane Journal: Empire of Man 9
Arcane Journal: High Elf Realms 10
Arcane Journal: Orc & Goblin Tribes 11
Arcane Journal: The Razing of Westerland 13
Arcane Journal: The War of Settra's Fury 14
Arcane Journal: Tomb Kings of Khemri 15
Arcane Journal: Warriors of Chaos 16
Arcane Journal: Wood Elf Realms 17
Armybuilding 18
Basic Rules 21
Battlefield Terrain 47
Beastmen Brayherds 48
Challenge 49
Challenges 50
Characters 54
Combat 74
Dwarfen Mountain Holds 79
Empire of Man 82
General Principles 84
High Elf Realms 89
Kingdom of Bretonnia 90
LLO 94
Lores of Magic 97
Low linear obstacle 99
Magic 100
Magic Items 113
Movement 117
Orc & Goblin Tribes 123
Scenarios 126
Shooting 128
Skaven 131
Skirmishers 132
Special Rules 136
The Psychology of War 172
Tomb Kings of Khemri 173
Universal Rules 175
Universal Special Rules 176
Unusual Formations 187
War Machines 189
Warhammer Armies 193
Warhammer Battles 195
Warhammer: The Old World Matched Play Guide 196
Warriors of Chaos 197
Weapons of War 198

Wood Elf Realms 200

0 Faction Rules

#408

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Master Rune of Hesitation says the enemy unit "does not count as having charged for the purpose of choosing which weapons to use or using any special rules it may have." How does this affect weapons that can be used whether charging or not charging, such as cavalry spears or flails?

RULING

Because the rune only says "for the purpose of choosing," this means that the charging unit cannot choose to use lances. However, it does not negate any benefits those weapons gain when charging (except if they gain special rules, which the rune negates as normal). For example, a flail would grant +2S for charging, but not Armourbane (1).

References: Master Rune of Hesitation, Cavalry Spear

Arcane Journal: Armies of Grand Cathay

#1015 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Cathayan Dragon is in base contact with an enemy unit when they transform, can they move out of base contact during their transformation?

RULING

No.

References: Arcane Journal: Armies of Grand Cathay

#1045 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Heavenly Beacon allows you to modify the roll by +1 or -1 when rolling to determine if Ambushers arrive. Is this cumulative? In other words, is it +2 or -2 if I have two Sky Lanterns?

RULING

No, it's not cumulative. You may apply a +1 or -1 modifier if you have one or more Sky Lanterns.

References: Arcane Journal: Armies of Grand Cathay

#1079 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Are the effects of the Grand Cannon's Thunderous Impact special rule cumulative? In other words, if a unit is within range of two strike points, does it suffer a -2 modifier to its Movement characteristic?

RULING

No, it's not cumulative.

References: Arcane Journal: Armies of Grand Cathay

#1101 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Mastery of the Elemental Winds can only be used once per turn, but is this once per Wizard or once per army?

RULING

Once per army.

References: Arcane Journal: Armies of Grand Cathay

Arcane Journal: Beastmen Brayherds

#1013 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Beastmen Brayherds army includes an allied contingent of Beastmen, can the army contain two Herdstones, one in the main force and one in the allied contingent?

RULING

No. You can only include 0-1 Herdstone per army and, whilst an allied contingent may be in effect a small army within a larger army, in this regard you are ultimately playing with but one army.

However, if two players partnered for a doubles game (as defined in the Matched Play Guide), they could each take a Herdstone.

References: Arcane Journal: Beastmen Brayherds

#1055 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How does the Dark Coven army special rule from the Wild Herd Army of Infamy interact with the Plague Chalice?

RULING

In cases such as this, both outcomes can apply. If a natural double is rolled, the spell is cast as a perfect invocation and the caster suffers a hit from the Plague Chalice. However, the caster and any other members of their coven will then also suffer the effects of a roll on the Miscast table, as per the Dark Coven special rule.

References: Arcane Journal: Beastmen Brayherds

#1080 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does the Daemon Heart increase its user’s Dispel Range?

RULING

No.

References: Arcane Journal: Beastmen Brayherds

Arcane Journal: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1033 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a 'Dug In' unit of Skirmishers is charged by an enemy unit, does it lose that status?

RULING

No.

References: Arcane Journal: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1064 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit that has 'Dug In' becomes engaged in combat, does it lose that status if a model within it accepts or declines a challenge and moves through the ranks?

RULING

No.

References: Arcane Journal: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1088 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Is an 'Entrenched' unit protected on all four sides, or just its front?

RULING

Just its front, as stated on page 270 of the Warhammer: the Old World rulebook.

References: Arcane Journal: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1121 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Do runes inscribed upon a Doomseeker’s whirling blades of death apply to Impact Hits?

RULING

Yes. As stated under Whirlwind of Death, Impact Hits caused by a Doomseeker are resolved using the profile of its whirling blades of death, which includes any runes the weapon is inscribed with.

References: Arcane Journal: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1138 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Doomseeker join a unit of Slayers?

RULING

No, as per the errata, a Doomseeker is not a character. They are loners and outcasts even amongst Slayers and, as such, act as a unit of one model.

References: Arcane Journal: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1147 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a Goblin Hewer shoots using the Whirling Death special rule, does it add a D3 modifier to the number of shots rolled for each rank or file, or just a single D3 modifier?

RULING

Roll an Artillery dice, plus an extra D3 per rank or file of the unit, depending upon which arc the weapon is shooting into.

References: Arcane Journal: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

Arcane Journal: Empire of Man

#1036 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If Harald Gemunsen issues a second challenge using his Skilled Duellist special rule, he can fight again immediately. Can his opponent in that challenge fight again?

RULING

Yes. If Harald's second challenge is accepted it is fought immediately, meaning both Harald and his opponent can fight. However, Harald's mount may not fight, and nor may his opponent's.

References: Arcane Journal: Empire of Man

#1066 GW FAQ

QUESTION

A unit of Empire Road Wardens may replace its crossbows with braces of pistols for +1 point per model. If it does so, must the Captain (champion) pay an additional +2 points to do the same?

RULING

No. If the entire unit replaces its crossbows with braces of pistols, that includes the Captain. If the unit is armed with crossbows, the Captain has the option to replace theirs with a brace of pistols or a repeater pistol.

References: Arcane Journal: Empire of Man

Arcane Journal: High Elf Realms

#1025 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can Korhil Lionmane or a Chracian Chieftain join a unit of White Lions of Chrace?

RULING

Yes.

References: Arcane Journal: High Elf Realms

Arcane Journal: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1010 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Ogdruz Swampdigga has a Lore Familiar and knows spells from both the Lore of Elementalism and the Lore of Troll Magic. Can he choose his spells from both lores, or from just one?

RULING

He can choose from both.

References: Arcane Journal: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1054 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If I take a Black Orc Warboss as the General of a Nomadic Waaagh!, can I take a unit of Boar Boys as a Core choice?

RULING

No. A unit of Boar Boys can only be taken as a Core choice if your General is an Orc Warboss.

References: Arcane Journal: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1090 GW FAQ

QUESTION

In a Nomadic Waaagh!, I can take one Black Orc Boss per Black Orc Chariot. If I take a Black Orc Boss mounted on a chariot, does that count?

RULING

No. You can take one Black Orc Boss per Black Orc Chariot taken as a Core or Rare choice. It does not matter what the Boss is mounted on.

References: Arcane Journal: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1113 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Black Orc Boss take a Black Orc Chariot as a mount in an army made using the Orc and Goblin Tribes Grand Army composition list?

RULING

They cannot. With heavy hearts, we must inform everyone who asked that that option is only available in armies made using the Nomadic Waaagh! Army of Infamy composition list.

References: Arcane Journal: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1135 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Troll Hag be the General of an Orc and Goblin Tribes army made using the Grand Army composition list?

RULING

No. A Troll Hag is a Rare choice in the Orc and Goblin Tribes Grand Army composition list. She can, however, be the General of a Troll Horde.

References: Arcane Journal: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1150 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Troll Hag purchases a magic weapon, are any of its special rules conferred onto Motherly Love attacks?

RULING

No. If she attacks normally, she can use her magic weapon. If she makes a Motherly Love attack, she does not use her magic weapon.

References: Arcane Journal: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1175 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can the size of a range 'self' spell's aura of effect be increased by the Idol of Gork?

RULING

No. The aura of effect of a range 'self' spell is not its range.

References: Arcane Journal: Orc & Goblin Tribes

Arcane Journal: The Razing of Westerland

#1016 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a single character or unit takes two or more of the same Chaotic Trait, are its effects cumulative?

RULING

No.

References: Arcane Journal: The Razing of Westerland

Arcane Journal: The War of Settra's Fury

#1009 GW FAQ

QUESTION

In a doubles event, as described in the Matched Play Guide, which armies, if any, can a Renegade Crowns army ally with?

RULING

If the primary force is a Renegade Crowns, Empire of Man, or Kingdom of Bretonnia army, Renegade Crowns can be fielded as trusted allies.

References: Arcane Journal: The War of Settra's Fury

#1041 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Must a unit be in a Phalanx in order to not become Disrupted when charged by a unit with First Charge?

RULING

Yes. Units do not gain the benefit of being in a particular formation if they are not in that formation.

References: Arcane Journal: The War of Settra's Fury

Arcane Journal: Tomb Kings of Khemri

#1014 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a Tomb Scorpion or unit of Necroserpents makes use of the Terrors Below special rule, is the number of Initiative tests the enemy unit takes equal to its own Unit Strength, or equal to the Unit Strength of the unit using the special rule?

RULING

The latter. This special rule represents an emerging unit displacing earth and dragging infantry to their doom. How much earth the unit can displace is determined by its own Unit Strength, not by that of the enemy.

References: Arcane Journal: Tomb Kings of Khemri

#1057 GW FAQ

QUESTION

The crew of Tomb Guard chariots are equipped with shields. Does this improve the Armour Value of the model from 4+ to 3+?

RULING

No. A chariot's given Armour Value takes into account such equipment.

References: Arcane Journal: Tomb Kings of Khemri

Arcane Journal: Warriors of Chaos

#1024 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens if I wish to accept a challenge to fight a Warrior's Duel but do not have any single Wound champions in my army?

RULING

Roll off to determine who takes the first turn as normal.

References: Arcane Journal: Warriors of Chaos

#1069 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When fighting a Warrior's Duel challenge between two unit champions, are such things as magic standards carried by their units counted?

RULING

No. A Warrior's Duel is fought between the two participants alone, without any support from their units.

References: Arcane Journal: Warriors of Chaos

#1098 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a character joins a unit of Skin Wolves, can they be transfigured by the Warped Form special rule?

RULING

No.

References: Arcane Journal: Warriors of Chaos

Arcane Journal: Wood Elf Realms

#1008 GW FAQ

QUESTION

A Wood Elf Noble that belongs to a Wild Rider Kindred may only wear light armour, but can they also wear a magic helmet?

RULING

Yes, a helmet can be worn in addition to light armour.

References: Arcane Journal: Wood Elf Realms

Armybuilding

#28 Clarification

0 General Rules

QUESTION

If there are multiple selections for the restriction „0-1 unit may…“. Can multiple units take one of the selections each, or can only one single unit have one or more of these selections?

RULING

Multiple units can have one or more of these selections, but no selection can be taken more than once in this case.

References: Army Composition

#128

0 General Rules

QUESTION

When do you choose the Lore for an Arcane Familiar (or Wizarding Hat)? When do you choose how many spells are rolled from each Lore if knowing more than a single Lore?

RULING

The chosen Lore has to be noted in the army list. When randomly generating spells, first declare how many spells you want to generate on each Lore. Roll separately, re-rolling duplicate spells for each Lore. A single randomly generated spell can be replaced with the signature spell of the same Lore, or with a spell from the army lore the wizard may have

References: Arcane Familiar CRB 343, Wizarding Hat

#162

0 General Rules

QUESTION

There are a some items, which have restrictions for "characters" regarding the acess or the use of these items. Can unit champions with access to magic items buy or use these items?

RULING

If the type of character is not specified further (for example "beastmen chieftain only or necromancer only"), champions are allowed to take and use these items with the same restrictions. If the items have any restrictions that apply generally to Characters, those restrictions also apply to non-Characters models that can take the items.

#239

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Does a wizarding hat allow a character to buy arcane items? If the Character was a Wizard before and buys an arcane item. Does the Arcane Item affect spellcasting and spell generation of this model?

RULING

No, see GW FAQ. As explained in the GW FAQ, the wearer is not actually a Wizard, but instead the Hat is the wizard. Since the hat is not affected by armour the bearer wears, it is also not affected by arcane items.

References: GW FAQ

#258

0 General Rules

QUESTION

If a unit is not listed in the army list composition section of "characters", but one of its subtype is "character", does it counts for the 3 minimum non-character units needed for army composition? (not including ones with troop type swarm/war beastes/war machine)?

RULING

No, they are character units.

#342

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can Champions take 25 pts more points in Royal Clan or Wild Herd or similar Armies of Infamy?

RULING

No

References: Arcane Journal Beastmen Brayherds, Arcene Journal Dwarf Mountain Holds

#354

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can the champion of a unit which swapped their shields for another weapon still buy a magical shield? And can the champion chose to wield a separate equipment than the unit (if he wears a mundane/magical weapon?)?

RULING

Yes, just like how a character doesn't have to buy a generic shield in order to have a magic one. You just need the shield as a possible option to access the magic version. Yes, the champion can use a different weapon option if he has access to.

#368

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

In the army list for most Armies of Infamy, there will be a text box stating: "Any models that have the option to purchase magic items will have the option to purchase Common or (Faction) magic items). How does this apply to models in the army that are drawn from army books with a different selection of magic items?

RULING

Models can select magic items from their original army book only (Shaggoths in Wolves of the Sea get only Beastmen items).

Basic Rules

#19

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

The Fighting Rank. How do you determine the number of attacks of a model with closing in and stepping forward? How does the new FAQ, affect this? How are casualties removed in combat? How does this affect the number of attacks a unit can make?

RULING

Which models can attack and the number of attacks those models can make is determined in step 1.1. Per the combat phase sequence (as this step is not repeated) this is not revisited and largely does not change during a fight (this is also known as the "Combat Lock" or "Combat Freeze"). The FAQ about Press of Battle and Stepping forward from a fighting rank into another creates a clear exception to this norm: Models that were already in a fighting rank and determined to have been able to fight in step 1.1., can still make any remaining attacks they have after stepping up as they are closing in. In addition, if stepping up and closing in brought them into base to base contact with the enemy they may make their full number of attacks rather than just a singular attack in order to "maximizing their number of attacks".

For all other cases, the number of attacks is not changed when models Step Forward, move to replace characters that retire from the Fighting Rank, or change position in the unit due to shrinking units or other reasons.

Casualties are removed among models that can fight (within M") and from the ends of each rank (owner chooses from which end for every casualty):

- Firstly, from the first fighting rank,
- secondly, from the second fighting rank (if applicable),
- thirdly, from models making supporting attacks (if applicable),
- finally from models of the unit that cannot fight. Remove actual models from the rear (mark the models counting as casualties). Once you removed your first casualty and if the back rank is incomplete, you must continue to remove models from the same direction in the rear rank.

Remember that a model that steps up into a different fighting rank due to casualty removal must allocate its attacks only against an enemy unit that it could have attacked prior to stepping up and models that step up into fighting ranks from outside cannot attack t all (as determined in 1.1)

References: Stepping Forward CRB 102, Supporting Attacks CRB 145, Excess Casualties CRB 150, Choose Combat &Determine Who Can Fight CRB 145ff, Stepping Forward & Closing In CRB 150, GW FAQ

#45 Clarification

2-3 Movement Phase Compulsory Moves

QUESTION

If a unit is returning after pursuing /charging off the battlefield, does it need to be placed more than 8" away from enemy units as per ambushers rules.

RULING

No, this is restriction is when the position is chosen. The position for returning is as close as possible to the point at which it left the battlefield in a legal position (e.g. 1" away from enemy units and not on top of own units

References: Pursuit off the Battlefield CRB 157Ambushers CRB 166

#50

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

How is the distance of a wheel measured?

RULING

It is measured by taking a straight line from the outside front corner of the starting position to the outside front corner of the end position of the outermost model. For wheels that move over an angle greather than 90 degrees, measure the wheel in increments of (up to) 90 degrees.

References: Basic Movement CRB 123 - 124

#51

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

How is he rear corner defined that is allowed to move through units (from the previous FAQs)

RULING

If there is no alternative a unit can move through other units as long as the front edge is not touching the other unit.

References: Wheel through another unit GW FAQ 1.5.1 9

#55 Clarification

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

How do you perform a turn, with non square bases, e.g. Cavalry as the Models would overlap.

RULING

Turn the center model to keep the unit center the same and then align all other models accordingly so that the number of previous ranks are the current files and vice versa (given they have enough movement to conduct this maneuver)

References: Manoeuvres Turn CRB 124

#67

3 Shooting Phase

QUESTION

What is Shooting or a Shooting Attack? Can i use special rules that grant abilites to be used in the Shooting Phase after Marching or Charging? What about evasive or lone character protection against such abilities?

RULING

Besides the attacks with Missile weapons units do when selected in the shooting phase for shooting, the following abilities are considered to be shooting or shooting attacks:

- Abilities that inflict hits, wounds suffered or wounds lost against a target are shooting attacks
- Magic Missiles and Vortexes are defined as shooting, if they have a target or not
- Any ability that is introduced as "shooting " or "instead of shooting normally" or an "attack in the shooting phase" or being "used in the shooting phase" (Column of Fire, Pidgeon Bomb, Wailing Dirge, Breath Weapon etc.) is shooting

Anything else happening in the Shooting Phase is not a shooting attack (Zzzap! Ability of the Doomwheel)

You cannot use a Shooting Attack or Shooting after you marched (including abilities that can be used in combat like Wailing Dirge or Storm Call)

Evasive and Lone Character Protection can be used against:

- Any of those abilities affirmed to be shooting/attacks above that have a single target unit/model (and normal shooting)
- Breath Weapons and any of those abilities with intended target, if the unit to be protected or using evasive is the intended target. The intended target is the unit you aim to hit the most models possible of. This means you cannot try to hit a character if that means you hit less models of the intended target unit.
- Cannon Fire and Column of Fire can only have evasive used against them if the target point/template lies on a models base.

Evasive and Lone Character Protection cannot be used against any of those abilites that have no target (Burning Gaze, Gaze of Gork, Strangleroots, Cannon Fire if the target point was not on the models base).

References: The Shooting Phase CRB 136How Many Shots? CRB 137Look Out Sir CRB 199Look Out, Sir CRB 209Wailing Dirge

#71

3-2 Shooting Phase Roll to Hit

QUESTION

Does the entire unit count as moved when determining the shooting penalty, or is it determined by individual models?

RULING

It is determined by individual models. Note that marching applies to the entire unit, except for a character who joined a marching unit but did not march himself.

References: Movement & Manoeuvre CRB 185Moving and Shooting CRB 139

#72

3-4 Shooting Phase Remove Casualties & Make Panic Tests

QUESTION

How do you remove models "as equally as possible", for example from shooting against Motley Crew Units

RULING

You can determine one model after the other by dividing the number of remaining models in each group by the number of models in that group removed already plus 1. The higher number will be the group of models where one model needs to be removed. In case of tie the attacker decides. So if you have 8 Models Group A and 2 Models Group B you would remove: A A (A or B) (B or A) A A (A or B) (B or A) A A

References: Motley Crew CRB 174Characters & Shooting CRB 209Unstable

#82

3-4 Shooting Phase Remove Casualties & Make Panic Tests

QUESTION

When does a unit test when suffering Heavy Casualties.

RULING

Immediately after the attacks that caused the losses are performed the unit need to test. Could lead to situations where a unit also FBIGO despite losing additional losses afterwards that would make them to be < 50% and flee

References: Psychology of War Heavy Casualties CRB 161

#83

4-3 Combat Phase Break Test

QUESTION

When a Unit Gives Ground, do you move them in a straight line or center to center away from the enemy unit

RULING

The rule says directly away but no pivots or turns. This means you move center to center but keep the facing.

References: Directly towards, directly away CRB 92Give Ground CRB 134

#106

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Does the controlling player choose the direction before or after rolling the distance for a spell, effect, or model (such as a fanatic) that moves in a random distance?

RULING

Choose before rolling. RAW is ambiguous, and the functional difference is minimal. This is less a "correct" answer and more of having something in place to keep the game flowing.

References: FanaticsMagic Vortex

#122 Clarification

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Is nudging units (because of rules like the 1" move and the shrinking units rules during combat) considered when determining whether a unit has moved ? For instance for Dangerous Terrain, Drilled and Lumbering rules, or the malus to shoot if the unit has moved ?

RULING

No

#125

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Do you need to maximize the number of models in combat or take the shortest route if that means that the unit charges two units or has the rule that you only charge one unit takes precedence over maximising.

RULING

If you can avoid charging two units you have to do so, event if that means you cannot maximise or take a longer route. Please note that completing the charge has priority. So you would charge two units if that is the only way to charge successfully.

References: The Charge Move CRB 126Multiple Charge Targets CRB 130

#144

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

If the single-use effect of a magic weapon, such as Wollopa’s One Hit Wunda, has not been used or has already been expended, can the wielder choose to use a different mundane weapon instead during combat?

RULING

No, Wollopa’s One Hit Wunda continues to count as a magical hand weapon even after its single-use effect is expended. Since it remains a magic item, you are not permitted to switch to another mundane weapon in that combat. Remember, general rules for switching weapons between rounds of combat still apply.

References: Single use magic items CRB 337, Wollopas One Hit wunda RH 43

#145

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

What happens when you charge a unit in the rear with an incomplete rank and kill all models in that rank? Do the models in the "new" rank can attack since they did not step forward nor were killed?

RULING

No, only those models can attack in their initiative step that were projected into the fighting rank before and weren't killed during prior attacks. To make it easier, you can determine the fighting rank for rear charges at the beginning of the combat, after characters have moved and challenges have been called.

References: Choose Combat & Determine Who can fight CRB 145ff

#153

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Can models acting on the same Initiative step, rolled one after another, decide to react to changes in the positions of characters, or decide one by one whether to strike at a character or the unit?

RULING

No, all attacks at the same Initiative step are considered to happen simultaneously. Therefore, changes in the positions of characters, such as a handmaiden retiring after striking, do not affect the resolution of other attacks on that Initiative step. Models attacking on the same Initiative step can still target the character as if she were in her original position.

#160 Clarification

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

If a unit decides to rearrange its ranks during a reform maneuver, is it limited to 5 models similar to redress the ranks?

RULING

No, but no model is allowed to move further than double its movement characteristic during a reform.

References: Manoeuvres Reform CRB 125

#181

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

What happens when a unit charges a unit and has no other choice but to charge in a way that a third (opponent) unit is within 1" of the charging unit

RULING

Since charge moves are conducted in the movement phase, the 1" rule comes to use and the units have to be nudged 1" away

References: The 1" Rule CRB 118

#183

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

Can a unit start / declare a march after it already made maneuver that you normally cannot use whilst marching?

RULING

No it cannot, a unit either marches or does not march.

References: Marching CRB 123

#184

4-3 Combat Phase Break Test

QUESTION

Do you have to announce the use of your general’s leadership before a break or leadership test or after the test is done?

RULING

Since the sequence for break tests clearly states rolling first and then comparing and checking later, you can roll first and then use Inspiring Presence or not, depending on the dice roll. For leadership tests, Inspiring Presence is optional too, since under Inspiring Presence "can” is stated.

References: Inspiring Presence CRB 203

#189

4-3 Combat Phase Break Test

QUESTION

What happens when a unit that gives ground cannot move more than 1" and will be within 1" of a unit it is in combat with, be it because of terrain or other units?

RULING

Since giving ground is not possible, the units remain locked in combat, but all units move as far as possible and remain locked at the new position (see GW FAQ).

References: Give Ground CRB 134

#201

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Can you decide to alter the charge path of a charging unit to avoid discarding the higher dice to make your charge successful, if you would instead fail the charge because of the terrain (by rolling a 1 and a 6 on the charge roll for instance, in addition to -1 M)?

RULING

Yes. You define the path taken by the unit after rolling the dice (it's already the case for wheeling to maximise contact) because you must move by the shortest route possible to reach the charge target. Make charges happen if possible.

References: The Charge Move CRB 126

#202

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Does the free wheel to align count in the charge move distance for the purpose of rules like Furious Charge and Impact Hits (reminder: When a unit wheels, every model counts as having moved as far as the outside model. Page 124)?

RULING

The free Wheel takes place after making contact. It is separated from the charge move, both for placement and initiative.

References: Aligning to the Enemy CRB 126, Who Strikes first? CRB 146

#206

2-1 Movement Phase Declare Charges and Charge Reaction

QUESTION

If I am redirecting a charge and the new target was already a charged target by another unit, can this new target declare to Flee now if it already declared to Hold against its initial charging enemycharge against a redirected charge?

RULING

Yes, the redirected charge calls to a new reaction but the only choices are Hold and Flee. The soldiers see the new enemy coming and it can change their initial decision.

References: Redirecting a Charge CRB 129

#207

4-3 Combat Phase Break Test

QUESTION

Give Ground : A unit giving ground stops moving immediately should it come into contact with another unit or terrain. Which type of terrain is meant here?

RULING

Only physical terrain features that are not open ground, meaning no hills and no vortexes. Note that this also affects units already in terrain prior to the give ground move, meaning that a unit already in terrain can't give ground and instead does not move

References: Give Ground CRB 134

#209

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

What happens if a unit makes contact with another unit not being the charge target during the free wheel of alignement?

RULING

If it was clear at the time of the charge declaration that the projected charge will end like this and you will hit the second unit during alignment, no matter the charge roll, you have to declare a charge against both units. If there is a slight possibility to avoid this situation, the unit should try and wheel around that unit. If it is impossible to avoid the contact in any case with the given charge roll result (but would have been with a better charge roll result), the charging unit conducts an accidental contact during a charge and may chose to either halt the charge (leading to a disordered charge with most likely only 1 model in base contact against the original charge target) or to continue (leading to a disordered charge with both units, in which the accidental contacted units might try to align). If the unit continues into a fleeing unit, the fleeing unit is destroyed and the charging unit's movement comes to an end. The charged unit wheels to align if necessary, in which case the charging unit makes a disordered charge.

References: Accidental Contact during a Charge CRB 131

#210

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

If you declare a charge against multiple units, is that charge a failed charge if you contact one of the units only with the free wheel from aligning?

RULING

No, this is still a valid charge.

References: Multiple Charge Targets CRB 130, Accidental Contact during a Charge CRB 131

#216

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

If a unit marches through difficult terrain, how is the movement calculated?

RULING

2(M-1) - Reduce the movement characteristic by one, then double it.

References: Marching CRB 123, Difficult Terrain CRB 135

#219

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

When a model steps forward during a combat, then the unit overruns into a new and unresolved combat, does the model get to make attacks?

RULING

No. A model may not make attacks during the same phase in which it stepped forward.

References: Stepping Forward & Closing in CRB 150

#220

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Can I contact (and so charge) an enemy unit if I already have redirected the charge of this unit this turn?

RULING

Yes, the unit count as redirecting, but it has not redirected.

References: Accidental Contact During A Charge CRB 131

#228

3-2 Shooting Phase Roll to Hit

QUESTION

How do you deteremine cover if a model can see multiple arcs of an opponent unit?

RULING

Check all line of sights from the shooting model to all models of the target unit, ignoring the lines which cross over models of the target unit. Models of the target unit you cannot see because of other models of that unit are ignored. Apply then the rules for cover, depending on how much of the unit is obscured. Note that according to GW FAQ, Woods give cover even without LOS crossing over them, as long as more than half of the target unit is within the Wood.

References: GW FAQ, Cover

#234

3-2 Shooting Phase Roll to Hit

QUESTION

Does a unit partially on a hill gets cover for models, for which the LoS is obstructed by the hill?

RULING

Yes. (RAW)

#235

3-2 Shooting Phase Roll to Hit

QUESTION

Does a unit gets cover, when the LoS that checks cover is partially obstructed by a unit closer to the center of a hill?

RULING

Yes

References: GW FAQ, Vantage Point CRB 271, Beyond the Crest CRB 271

#236

3-1 Shooting Phase Declare Target

QUESTION

If a unit wants to shoot at units on a hill - do units that are on the same hill and are further from the center than the target unit block line of sight for the shooting unit?

RULING

No, since they can see you over that unit, you can see them too - the rules for being closer to the center of the hill works both ways, imagine the unit closer to the center being higher elevated.

References: GW FAQ, Vantage Point CRB 271, Beyond the Crest CRB 271

#237

3-1 Shooting Phase Declare Target

QUESTION

Can you see a unit that is only partially on a hill and can you see a model that is only partially on a hill?

RULING

Yes, given no other unit obstructs that LoS. Treat models and units partially on a hill as they were on the ground, but the hill itself blocks no line of sight to those models that are partially on the hill.

References: GW FAQ, Vantage Point CRB 271, Beyond the Crest CRB 271

#263

4-3 Combat Phase Break Test

QUESTION

How do you flee along an impassable terrain? If a fleeing unit reaches impassable terrain, how does it move?

RULING

First, begin to flee as normal.

If the flee move would cause the unit to contact impassable terrain, it must pivot around its centre as soon as it is possible for the unit’s flank to be flush against the terrain feature, while facing the direction which will allow it to resume its flee move along its initial flee path as directly as possible. The unit will continue to flee along the side of the impassable terrain until it is able to pivot again around the feature's corner, and move along the next side of the feature (this might need to be done multiple times in case of a non-square feature, or multiple impassable features), until its centre is back on top of the initial direction of flight, at which point the unit will pivot in order to resume fleeing in its initial direction.

In the case where the unit is too close to pivot its flank against the impassable feature (this is often the case for very wide units, even if they are not backed against the feature), it must first pivot around its centre while facing the direction which will allow it to resume the unit’s flee move along its initial flee path as directly as possible. It then moves forward (taking peril tests as required), until pivoting with the unit’s flank against the feature is possible, then follow the procedure described above.

References: Fleeing through Terrain CRB 133

#273

4-4 Follow Up & Pursuit

QUESTION

When two units are in combat with the same facing of an enemy unit that flees from combat, how is the pursuit resolved? Do the units block each other when moving toward or pivoting to face the fleeing enemy?

RULING

Each pursuit happens sequentially, with the controlling player choosing their order. Pivot moves always ignore the presence of other units and terrain. When the first unit makes its pursuit, it may end overlapping with another friendly unit that was part of that combat (even though this is normally now allowed); and may move through those units until the first units move is complete. The other units do ignore the other units when making its own pivot aswell, but their move will often be blocked by the unit that has moved first. If the unit can only partly pivot and will overlap after pivot with the unit that has moved first, it pivots instead as far as it is able toward the fleeing enemy and does not move further.

References: Pivoting CRB 125, Pursuit CRB 156

#276

4-4 Follow Up & Pursuit

QUESTION

In order to overrun, a unit must destroy its enemy completely. Which "enemies" are meant by this?

RULING

This refers to all enemy units the unit is engaged in combat with—specifically, those in base contact. In combats involving multiple units, even if the enemy units in direct base contact are wiped out, the unit remains part of the combat until end of turn. Combat results still factor in this unit, and it must undergo any required break tests and suffer all consequences.

References: Overrun CRB 156

#277

0 General Rules

QUESTION

How are multiple Hits with the Multiple Wounds (X) special rule resolved against a unit with multiple Multiple Wound models? How do situations work where hits are inflicted on certain models (Cannons etc.)

RULING

Resolve attacks against the models that are hit in specific cases like cannons, or allocated attacks against champions or against the unit if the unit is attacked. This means, use the weapon skill, toughness, armour and ward saves accordingly.

Unsaved wounds are then applied one after another to the unit, except in the case of champions being hit, which have their own conditions under which they are hit separately, including cannons (which can hit the champion separately). Page 102 and GW FAQ tell us to start with wounds that inflict Killing Blow, followed by Multiple Wound (X) wounds, and finally ending with single wound attacks. For wounds on the unit, Allocate these wounds starting with the model that is already wounded (ignore the champion if he is wounded already).

References: Multiple Wound Models CRB 102

#278

4-4 Follow Up & Pursuit

QUESTION

How do you follow up? And what happens if, while performing the follow up move towards a unit that Gives Ground, the unit would contact instead another enemy unit that was not in the combat? Is it accidental contact or should movement stop at 1" from the unit that would be contacted?

RULING

To conduct a follow up move, do the opposite of give ground: move directly towards the enemy unit that gave ground, without turning, pivoting or otherwise changing its facing in any way until you make contact or until you stop because of contact with an impassable terrain or friendly unit. If you contact another enemy unit, this is accidental contact (pg. 131). if the enemy unit is contacted in the rear or flank, or if it is already in combat, nudge that unit and any units it is in combat with) aside and conduct the follow up move. If the enemy unit is contacted in its front, it can chose to accept the combat, effectively stopping the follow up move or give ground to avoid it.

References: Accidental Contact CRB 130, Follow Up CRB 156

#286

0 General Rules

QUESTION

What happens when a model that belongs to a unit of single wound models has multiple hits allocated specifically to this model? (for example Tree Whack)

RULING

If the model and not the unit is hit, the model is killed, but wounds from additional hits do not spill over to other models

#287

0 General Rules

QUESTION

How do you determine in which arc of a charge target a single model is?

RULING

Only check the front edge of the model - if the majority of the front edge of a model is in one arc, then charge this arc. If you cannot come to an agreement with your opponent, charge the arc which offers the lower combat resolution

References: GW FAQ

#289

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Do one-handed magic weapons, which do not count as any other weapon type, qualify for the Parry special rule of Infantry?

RULING

Only if the weapon is specifically stated to be or count as hand weapon (right now that is only the wollopa one hit wounda after use)

References: GW FAQ

#294

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Does the new FAQ entry of the Fighting Rank mean that all ranks and files which have only one model in contact with opponent models count as Fighting Ranks?

RULING

When two opposing units are engaged in combat, only one row of models—the rank or file that is both in base contact and aligned (or almost in disordered charges) to the enemy’s engaged row—is considered the fighting rank. Other ranks or files that merely contain a single model in contact do not count as fighting ranks. Exceptions to this rule apply only to units in Lance Formation, Skirmishers, and Infantry (which has two fighting ranks in some cases), which may have different fighting rank rules.

References: GW FAQ, The Fighting Rank CRB 145

#303

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

How do you calculate the correct armour save if you have Parry, other modifiers, and Armour Piercing?

RULING

Parry cannot improve your armour save beyond a 3+ value. This means that when calculating the base armour save (before any roll modifiers), Parry will cap the result at 3+ if not improved by other means. However, if the unit is affected by a rule that modifies the armour save value itself (e.g. Plague of Rust), you can balance positive and negative modifiers against each other. For example Rune of Oath & Steel. Note that modifiers to the armour save roll—like Armour Piercing, Totem of Rust, etc.—do not interact with this cap and leave it at 3+. They apply after the save value is determined, and reduce the final roll needed for success.

References: GW FAQ

#304

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

If an infantry model that has an 2+ Armour Save (without parry), fights with hand weapon and shield - does it have to use parry and only has a 3+ Asv as the consequence?

RULING

While the model has to use parry, parry only improves the armour save - therefore, the model retains its 2+ Asv. Note that you cannot use the parry bonus to get to a 2+ Armour Save by any means.

References: GW FAQ

#332

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Can you touch the flank of a unit to charge the front corner, if the full front arc/rank of the unit is already occupied by another unit of your own (or opponent)?

RULING

If the full front arc is occupied, according to GW, you cannot charge the front at all. If even the tiniest bit of the front is unoccupied on a corner, you can do a disordered charge against the corner but note that you have to be able to position before aligning.

References: Disordered Charge CRB 128

#340

4-3 Combat Phase Break Test

QUESTION

If an enemy unit loses combat and will Give Ground off the battlefield, what are the winning unit's options?

RULING

The winner can attempt to restrain and reform as normal. If the unit would Follow Up, they do not move as there is no enemy to move into contact with (and a unit can only overrun if the enemy is destroyed before the break test).

#344

4-4 Follow Up & Pursuit

QUESTION

When do units actually conduct Overrun?

RULING

Overrun is a pursuit move. The unit has the choice to attempt to restrain or reform, same as for Pursuit or to Overrun and makes then a normal pursuit move bust moves directly forwards. So, the unit moves after break tests.

References: Overrun CRB 156

#347

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

When charging a unit in an arc that features an incomplete rank, how are you to make contact with that unit? What happens if you overrun or pursuit into such a unit, but only hit the template or rather footprint?

RULING

If charging, Use the footprint of the unit, extending the incomplete rank or file to be complete, and have the charging unit make contact (and maximize contact with) models who would be in those positions. If Overruning or during a pursuit, you only make contact with such an unit if you hit actual models. In that case, you would conduct your move wheeling to maximise towards the footprint of the unit.

#359

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

When do you actually conduct accidental contact during a charge? Do you get a charge reaction against it? What happens if you have Fly? And what happens if the original charge target fled?

RULING

If wheeling around the obstacle would cause you to do a failed charge, or if the unit is not able to wheel around the obstacle unit at all, you conduct accidental contact during a charge. The charging unit only counts as having redirected prior so it can make contact - you don't get a charge reaction, which only is available after a unit is selected as charge target during a redirect or charge declaration.

A charging unit must endeavour to bring as many models as possible within its front rank into base contact with models in the charged unit. That is the highest priority and the unit must use Fly (X) if needed. You determine if Fly (X) is needed when the unit starts its charge move. If the charging unit with Fly(X) would make a failed charge and ends on top of the enemy unit, do accidental contact. However, if you fly over/behind the enemy unit, you cannot do accidental contact as it is not the enemy unit, but the missing charge distance that leads to the failed charge. If the charge target declared flee or is fleeing for any reason, you do not conduct accidental contact during a charge at all, as you have to check for accidental contact during Running Down the Foe. During Running down the Foe, you charge as normally and you never make a failed charge, thus you always try to wheel or move around the obstacle unit. Only if you cannot do that, you will make accidental contact. This means, in most caes, that units with Fly (X) or Skirmishers go over or around obstacle units.

References: Accidental Contact during a Charge CRB 131, Pursuit into a fresh Enemy CRB 157

#367

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Due to the GW FAQ about objects being removed from the table, what is an object?

RULING

Anything that has a real or represented (by template) physical presence on the board that is present for more than a single sub-phase. A unit is a type of object, for example, as is a magical vortex

References: GW FAQ

#369

0 General Rules

QUESTION

When an attack that uses a template (such as Bombardment or an assailment or magic missile that uses a 3" or 5" blast) scatters to be partially off the table, how is this resolved?

RULING

Template attacks resolved fully even if the template is partially off the table.

References: GW FAQ

#374

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can you see "into" a base of a model or does the base itself block Line of Sight of that Model? Can you aim cannon shots onto the base of a model you see?

RULING

No, bases fully block line of sight.

References: Line of Sight CRB 103

#376

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

Q: Redress the Ranks requires models to be added (or subtracted) from the left and right side of the unit "as equally as possible." What happens when it is only possible to add models to one side of the unit?

RULING

Redress the Ranks can at most add one more model to the left side than the right (or vice versa). If one side is blocked, then a unit can only redress to add a single model to the opposite side.

When removing models, the last models to remove must be the characters, then the command group, always keeping the standard bearer in the front rank and as close to the centre as possible. Command group models removed from the front rank must go to the second rank (and third in case of a single column). Characters removed from the front rank must go to the rear rank. The player choses the position of all models in their respective back ranks. When adding models to the front rank, the opposite order must be followed: first the command group, then the characters, before rank and file models. The position of added models can be chosen by the controlling player, but must respect the positioning rule for the command group and for characters: standard bearer as close to the centre as possible, command group models to either side, characters anywhere in the front rank. Note that characters may be placed among the command group.

References: Redress the Ranks CRB 125

#391

0 General Rules

QUESTION

How do I determine the troop type of a unit that includes rank-and-file models with two different troop types?

RULING

Use the unit type stated in the primary Unit entry (War Beasts / Cavalry for Primal Warhounds for example). However, Rank Bonus and Special Rules that affect models can be applied to individual models (using generals Ld, getting a third rank bonus with horde if the rank consists entirely of Infantry etc).

#392

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

When a unit fleeing from a charge or a combat flees off the battlefield or is destroyed during its flee move (e.g. due to peril tests, dangerous terrain, fanatics, vortexes,...), what happens to a charging/pursuing unit?

RULING

Complete the fleeing unit’s movement, and leave it in place. Then complete charges and pursuits, as if that unit was still fully on the board.

If the fleeing unit is destroyed during the flee move, conduct pursuit and charges towards the position where the last model was removed.

#394

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

What Armour Value is used if a model equipped with hand weapon and shield and the parry spcial rule is engaged in combat and suffers wounds before Step1.1 of his Combat? Can the model use Parry?

RULING

Use the same Armour Value that would be used if the model were not engaged in combat. The model will use his shield if he has one, but Parry does not apply as his weapon choice has not yet been made for that combat round.

#396

1-3 Strategy Phase Conjuration

QUESTION

When dispelling Remains in Play spells during the Conjuration sub-phase, can a dispel attempt be made multiple times (by multiple wizards, for example) against the same spell?

RULING

No. You may attempt to dispel each Remains in Play spell a single time per Conjuration sub-phase, choosing either a wizard within wizardly dispel range or by making a fated dispel. The same wizard may be chosen to use their wizardly dispel this way against any number of Remains in Play spells.

References: Dispelling Remains in Play Spells CRB 111

#397

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

If a unit loses models during its movement, e.g. by moving through a fanatic, dangerous terrain, peril tests or a vortex, when are models removed?

RULING

Remove models right after each damage-dealing source encountered. A reduction in the unit size might affect whether or not it encounters terrain, models or objects behind the first damage-dealing source, and the following wheels might be affected if the unit width is reduced. Charge roll is still affected by terrain based on whether it would be contacted before moving, taking the low dice if the charge path is expected to cross terrain before moving. If the moving unit is a fanatic, he is immediately removed from play and does not move any further if slain.

#399

3 Shooting Phase

QUESTION

When multiple templates would hit a unit in the same shooting sequence (for eample results 2-6 of the miscast table with the dark coven rule or from Sky Lantern bombing), how do you resolve these templates?

RULING

Resolve the templates at the same time. Every hit is assigned to the model that is actually hit, leading to possibly single models suffering multiple hits. Note for single-wound models, this will possibly cause excess damage, which is then lost. Roll for each model on its own.

#400

3 Shooting Phase

QUESTION

Can models in the rear ranks of a formed unit shoot if they are able to draw a Line of Sight? What does "normally" mean in the sentence “Normally, only models in the front rank of a unit can shoot” within [Check Line of Sight]?

RULING

No. "Normally" means “as a rule”, which applies unless another rule explicitly overrides it (Volley Fire, Vantage Point)

References: GW FAQ, Vantage Point CRB 271, Beyond the Crest CRB 271, Volley Fire CRB 180, Large Target

#404

3-1 Shooting Phase Declare Target

QUESTION

How/When can units draw Line of Sight to points on Hills or in Forests, for example when targeting a point with Cannon Fire?

RULING

The GW FAQ states that Line of Sight is only obstructed to points behind such terrain features and not in these Terrain Features. For Vantage Points, treat any target point as a unit. Any point on a hill can be seen over models and units, provided they are no closer to the center of the hill as the potential target point.

References: GW FAQ, Vantage Point CRB 271, Beyond the Crest CRB 271

#414 Clarification

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Some spells and abilities ask a model to take an Initiative test, such as Terrors Below or Durthu's Wrath. How do temporary modifiers, such as spells, charging, or weapon special rules, affect these? Similarly, what initiative value is used when making an attack with a spell or weapon other than the one chosen to fight with during step 1.1 of combat?

RULING

A model's initiative for attacking, casting an assailment, or making a test always uses its current (modified) value. If tests are made in the Combat Phase, this includes the Charging Units Initiative bonus, even if the test is made out of combat in a turn that unit charges or counts as having charged. However, special rules from / on weapons like Strikes Last or Always Strikes First apply only to attacks made with those weapons - ignore these rules for all other purposes, including attacks made with different weapons or by different models on a combined profile. In the case of Spectral Doppelganger, attacks with a weapon with Strike First are still resolved on the same initiative as the spell is cast.

References: Spectral Doppelganger, Durthu's Wrath, Strike First, Strike Last

Battlefield Terrain

#1001 GW FAQ

QUESTION

To defend a low linear obstacle, a unit must move its front rank into base contact with it. Are Skirmishers able to do this, or does their lack of ranks prevent it?

RULING

Skirmishers can defend a low linear obstacle. To do so, simply move as many Skirmishers as possible into base contact with one side of the feature.

References: Battlefield Terrain p268

Beastmen Brayherds

#1021 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can the Hagtree Fetish be used to re-roll rolls To Wound caused by a Bound Spell?

RULING

No. Bound Spells are cast by the item they are bound to, whilst Arcane Items such as the Hagtree Fetish affect spells cast by their bearer. Therefore, unless an item specifies it has an effect upon Bound Spells, it does not.

References: Beastmen Brayherds

#1056 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a unit with the Blood Greed special rule always roll only a single D6 when making a Pursuit roll, or only whilst Frenzied?

RULING

Only whilst Frenzied.

References: Beastmen Brayherds

Challenge

#182

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Is a champion removed as a casualty when he is in a challenge and the whole unit is removed as a casualty, including an unsaved wound for the champion?

RULING

Yes, no Rule in champions (199) prevents the champion from being removed

References: Champions CRB 199

Challenges

#11 Clarification

4-2 Combat Phase Calculate Combat Result

QUESTION

Do Excess Wounds from Multiple Wounds (X) count for Overkill vs. non-Character models (Champions)?

RULING

Yes. All Challenges, both vs. Characters and Champions allow Overkill, so excess wounds from multiple wounds should be counted against Champions as well. Champions are treated as Characters for this Purpose.

References: Hits that Inflict Multiple Wounds CRB 143, Multiple Wounds (X) CRB 175, Overkill and Champions GW FAQ 1.5.1 11, Overkill CRB 211

#23

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Does a champion in a unit with a single Rank open a new rank when refusing a challenge.

RULING

No - A challenge can only be declined if all models able to accept it are able to retire to positions outside of the fighting rank, without creating a new rank.

In the case of a single rank unit engaged in the front, this is not possible and the challenge must be accepted. If the unit is engaged in one flank only, the challenge can be declined as the champion or character is able to retire to the other flank.

In the case of a unit with two fighting ranks (due to press of battle), the challenge can only be declined if there is a third rank the character or champion can join.

References: Refusing a Challenge 210, Nowhere to Run CRB 211

#281

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Regarding the Challenges & Mounts Change - how do you determine which attacks are lost?

RULING

If one participant of the challenge is slain in one initiative step, all attacks with a lower initiative in this combat are lost and will not be conducted. You can only score overkill from attacks of the same initiative of the step in which the participant is slain.

References: GW FAQ

#292

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

If a unit A is engaged with two units B and C, one (B) of which is a single character in a challenge, the rules say that all models of the first unit A which normally must attack the character B due to closeness instead are allowed to attack the other unit C. How does this work with fighting ranks and "full attacks"?

RULING

Since "the unit" is specified in the FAQ about fighting ranks, only the models within M" of Unit C can attack that unit. Please note that these models only get to make 1 A, regardless if they are in base contact with B or not.

References: Who can fight CRB 145, How many attacks? CRB 146, Multiple Units in Combat CRB 147

#335

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Can you refuse a challenge in a combat with multiple eligible characters, where at least one of those characters cannot refuse a challenge, but others could?

RULING

No, at least one eligible character has to accept the challenge.

References: Challenges CRB 210

#1022 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Wizard engaged in a challenge knows and uses an Assailment spell that can hit multiple enemy models (such as Assailment spells that use a template), are multiple enemy models hit, or is it only the other participant in the challenge that can be hit?

RULING

When an Assailment spell is cast in a challenge, it can only hit the other participant in the challenge.

References: Challenges

#1071 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If one participant in a challenge causes Impact Hits or makes Stomp Attacks, where are they directed?

RULING

Impact Hits are resolved prior to issuing challenges. Stomp Attacks may be directed against the other participant in the challenge.

References: Challenges

#1096 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If one participant in a challenge is killed, can other models engaged in the same combat direct their Attacks against the survivor during the same Combat phase when it is their turn to fight?

RULING

No. Even if one participant in a challenge has been slain, the challenge is considered to be ongoing until the end of the current Combat phase.

References: Challenges

#1118 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Is Overkill counted by or against a champion in a challenge, or does it only count for characters?

RULING

Overkill counts in all challenges, whether the participants are characters or champions.

References: Challenges

#1140 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Two characters are engaged in a challenge whilst their units battle around them. At the end of the round, the losing unit might Fall Back in Good Order or Give Ground. If their enemy pursues or follows up, does the challenge continue?

RULING

Yes. As stated on page 211, if both participants in a challenge survive the round and if the combat continues, the challenge continues.

References: Challenges

#1161 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a character is within one fighting rank they cannot move through the ranks to join another. Might this prevent them from accepting a challenge?

RULING

No. If a character is eligible to accept a challenge they can do so wherever they are in a unit and will move through the ranks into base contact with their opponent. However, if it is awkward to move a model, it is quite acceptable for the players to agree it has moved and fight the challenge as if the combatants were in base contact, thus avoiding too much disruption.

References: Challenges

Characters

#2 Clarification

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can Characters join Swarms?

RULING

Yes, if they are not prevented from joining them by special rules (Unbreakable, Loner, Fly, Ethereal) or different troop type and skirmish formation.

References: Characters Joining Skirmishers CRB 185, Characters & Units CRB 207, Unbreakable CRB 179, Loner CRB 172

#12

0 General Rules

QUESTION

What happens when only characters (excluding champions) are left in a unit?

RULING

The unit immediately ceases to exist.

Treat the characters as units on their own and use the lone character rules if applicable.

In combat, any attacks on lower initiative steps may be allocated to those characters according to the rules for multiple units in combat.

Out of combat, the surviving characters and nearby units must make Panic for "nearby friend destroyed" if the US of the destroyed unit was high enough (including the surviving characters). Surviving characters who fail their Panic will Fall Back in Good Order. Any special rules of the unit cease to exist (characters still have their own special rules). If a spell was only on the unit (not being cast by self range by one of the characters), the characters lose the effect of that spell.

References: Characters & Units CRB 207

#18

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Can a model that is only in base contact with a champion or a character allocate attacks to the unit itself or does it have to allocate all attacks to the champion or character?

RULING

Yes, the rules which force units to allocate attacks are only relevant for multiple units, but characters and the unit forme one single unit, you can allocate attacks to the unit.

References: Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight CRB 145 - 146Multiple Units in Combat CRB 147Characters in Combat 209

#20

4-4 Follow Up & Pursuit

QUESTION

Can a character that falls back in good order use evade?

RULING

No, the Pursuit Move is still part of the combat. Until the end of Step 4 both units count as being engaged in combat for this purpose.

References: Pursuit CRB 156, Evade CRB 206

#89 Clarification

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Do Characters and Crews benefit from the special rules of its mount and vice versa? If a Character uses an item, spell or ability that specifically affects the caster, does the caster's mount (including chariot crew etc.) benefit from that spell? Can champions use these items?

RULING

Unless noted otherwise, the split profile mechanics make any special rule that applies to one element (chariot, character, crew or beasts) apply to the others as well. Special Rules are shared- both positive and negative.

The same is true for all effects that affect the "model" or "unit", such as Daemonic Vessel.

However, if a spell, item or ability that is not a special rule specifies the caster or character (wearer or bearer) (such as Mantle of Ghorok, or Potion of Fervour) gaining an effect will only affect the character (or champion) itself and not their mount or any components of that split profile model.

References: Split Profiles CRB 97Mounted Characters CRB 204

#127 Clarification

0 General Rules

QUESTION

What are exactly the conditions to meet to buy a magic armour on a character?

RULING

To buy a magical shield, your character must be (or has the option to be) equipped with a shield. To buy a magical suit of armour, your character must be (or has the option to be) equipped with any suit of armour (light/heavy/plate), natural armour (such as calloused hide) excluded. To buy any other magical armour that is not an suit of armour or a shield, your character must be (or has the option to be) equipped with either a shield or any armour, natural armour excluded.I.E. a skink priest cannot be given any kind of magical armour even if it has calloused hide

References: Magic Armour CRB 340

#140

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Is a character that joins another unit still considered a unit for any rules purpose? What about special rules that unit has, but the character hasn't or vice versa?

RULING

They form together a single unit. Whenever the word 'unit' is mentioned in a special rule the unit already has or when the rule comes from a magical banner in that unit, apply rules for both the character and the unit he joined.

Special Rules a character has only apply to the unit if "and any unit they have joined" is mentioned or similar.

Please note that some special rules could cease to apply if a character without a special rule joins a unit or vice versa (e.g. Counter Charge).

Special rules that affect models or weapons do NOT translate from one model to the whole unit or vice versa (a unit with poisoned attacks will not give the character poisoned attacks when joining).

Special rules that only need the majority of models to have the special rule will work (e.g. Reserve Move).

If a character that casted a spell or used an ability "that affects the caster and any unit he has joined" leaves a unit after casting that spell/using the ability, only the caster has the effect, but if he joins another unit, that unit will benefit from that effect too.

if a unit with a character becomes the target of a spell that grants them a Special Rule or Ability, the character can benefit from it while it has joined the unit even if the Special Rule or Ability would prevent them from joining, but will lose it the moment it leaves the unit.

If all the models of the unit are removed as casualties, the unit ceases to exist immediately, and the character loses the Special Rule or Ability.

Anyway, if a character moved or marched before joining a unit, the unit will not count as moved/marched and vice versa.

References: Characters CRB 205 - 210

#147 Clarification

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can a mounted Character on light chariot (that has to adapt open order formation from its mount) joins a unit that has adopted close order formation?

RULING

Yes, the rule for mounted character formation ceases to apply as soon as he joins the unit and ceases to be an independent unit - the character will adopt the units formation.

References: Characters & Formation CRB 205

#157

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Are characters without special rule Vanguard, pre-deployment, permitted to Vanguard after joining a unit, post-deployment, with a banner that gives said unit the special rule Vanguard?

RULING

Yes, if the banner explicitly grants the Vanguard special rule to the entire unit then the character can Vanguard. However, the GW FAQ clarifies that a character does not gain Vanguard if it joins a unit that has the rule only in its profile. This distinction arises because Vanguard in a unit’s profile does not automatically extend to joined characters unless specifically stated by an upgrade, like a banner, that applies to the entire unit.

References: GW FAQ

#159

3 Shooting Phase

QUESTION

Can a cannonball hit a character, which has joined a unit with 5 or more rank and file models?

RULING

Yes, since a cannon ball hits a model and not the unit, the character is hit (targeted by an attack that allows a specific model within the unit to be targeted). If there are 5 or more rank and file models that character is allowed to make a Look Out, Sir! - roll. This also applies to unit champions or special models within units.

References: Cannon Fire CRB 226, Characters & Shooting CRB 209

#170

1-2 Strategy Phase Command

QUESTION

Can a character that attempts to use an ability that requires a leadership test use the 'hold your ground' ability of an undead battle standard bearer to re-roll this test?

RULING

Yes

#177

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Which set of rules must be used for a character riding a behemoth with Howdah?

RULING

Split profile (chariot mount), because Howdah references Split profile (chariots)

References: Howdah CRB 171

#178

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can Skaven Master assassins and Dark Elves Khainite assassins be hidden in a unit that is not deployed at the start of the game (for instance ambushers)?

RULING

Yes

#179

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

When is decided the unit where Skaven Master assassins and Dark Elves Khainite assassins are hidden ?

RULING

When deploying characters

#203

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

How many demonic gifts can a demon of chaos character buy? Does a character equipped with a Daemonic Locus count as a Battle Standard Bearer?

RULING

Since there are no categories for the demonic gifts mentioned as in the rulebook for magic items, a character can buy as many different gifts as his point limit allows. Demonic gifts without an asterik can only be taken once per army. The character with Daemonic Locus is a BSB in all respects, in addition to having the Daemonic Locus special rule and for characters, only a demonic locus can buy a single icon.

References: Daemons of Chaos Demonic Gifts

#230

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

Can a character move more than twice its movement to use 'Move through the ranks' or when he joins a unit to reach the front rank?

RULING

Yes. Since the fighting rank is at a fixed location, he is obliged to move that distance to get to the fighting rank. The only times when a character inside of a unit is subject to this (besides normal maneuvering/moving) is Reform and Redress the ranks.

References: GW FAQ

#260

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Can a champion move through the ranks?

RULING

No, only non-champion characters are allowed to do so.

References: Moving through the Ranks CRB 208

#264

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

If I have multiple characters' base does not fit neatly (non-fitting bases) can they go on the same side?

RULING

The characters join the front of the unit and are placed on either the left or right flank, as shown in Figure (need reference from rules). Only one such character can be placed on each flank of the unit. For determining marching column or combat order, these models are ignored.

References: Positioning Characters CRB 207

#301

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

What happens if a character joins a single rank unit?

RULING

The character goes to the first rank, displacing one model to a newly formed second rank, as described under Positioning Characters.

References: Positioning Characters CRB 207

#302

3-1 Shooting Phase Declare Target

QUESTION

With the new ruling on shooting at characters that have joined a unit with different troop type, how do you process that shooting?

RULING

The character is targeted instead of the unit. All Line of Sight and Range are measured towards the character. Note that the unit is not able to use evasive or similar special rules and the character cannot be protected by 'Lone character' rules.

References: GW FAQ

#316

3-1 Shooting Phase Declare Target

QUESTION

Can characters that joined a unit of the same troop type be targeted by enemy shooting if there are fewer than five rank and file models (of the same troop type) in the unit they have joined?

RULING

No, the only change that GW's errata makes is to prevent characters of different types from receiving the protection enjoyed by same-type characters in units. When there are fewer than five rank and file models in a unit, the second paragraph of "Enemy Shooting" in the errata gives you instructions of how such characters can be hit when their units aren't of sufficient size.

References: GW FAQ

#351

0 General Rules

QUESTION

When a character or champion retires from combat, is moved for a challenge, or moves through the ranks, does this count as the unit moving for the purpose of related special rules (such as being 'entrenched')?

RULING

No. The character (or champion) counts as moving when they retire, but the unit itself does not.

#380

0 General Rules

QUESTION

If a Character is placed in the rear rank outside of combat because there is no room for them in the front rank, do they count as retired? What happens if there is also no space in the rear rank or he shrinks back into the fighting/front rank? What happens if there is space again for characters that retired because of too many characters or there are only places in the fighting rank left due to shrinking units?

RULING

A Character that is not leading from the front is considered retired and cannot confer Inspiring Presence, Hold Your Ground, Aura abilities or similar static benefits unless a rule explicitly states otherwise. Any benefits from spells with the range 'Self' are lost, but spells and abilities that targeted other units or are resolved for global effects remain in effect. Retired models will be counted towards the Units Unit Strength and towards the formation to determine rank bonus, combat order and marching column. They are still considered part of the unit for any check on unit type, model special rule affiliation (unit 'consists entirely' etc.) and target legality (ethereal, unbreakable etc.)

If the character cannot be placed in the rear rank, place him in the closest spot from the rear that is away from a fighting or front rank to retire him. Adjacent characters can be placed behind the rear rank if they retire.

If the unit shrinks down and the character returns by this to the front or fighting rank only because no other position away from a fighting rank is available, he unretires after all casualties are removed, after the initiative step and after any panic checks are resolved, but if this happens in combat he counts as having stepped forward. Outside of combat the usual rules for unretiring characters take place and characters return to the front rank if the formation allows to.

References: Positioning Characters CRB 207, GW FAQ

#382

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

When a character leaves a unit, how is that character affected by any spells or effects that modify the unit's movement? Do they maintain the unit formation they were in, or always move as a skirmisher?

RULING

Movement is checked when a character or unit begins their movement. They move as a skirmisher, and move through other models in their unit freely. Any spells or effects (positive or negative) affect the character's movement during the Remaining Moves phase in which the character leaves the unit. This means that if the unit is affected by Miasmic Mirage, the character cannot march, and if the unit is affected by Steed of Shadows, the character may move using Fly (12). If for any reason the character does not follow the Lone Character rules when not in a unit (such as a character on a light chariot), then they must adhere to the normal movement rules for their respective unit type when leaving the unit.

#390

2-1 Movement Phase Declare Charges and Charge Reaction

QUESTION

Can you use stand and shoot against a lone character, that would otherwise be protected by the "lone character" rule?

RULING

Yes, Stand and Shoot does not include targeting

References: Stand & Shoot CRB 120

#413

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

How does the Move Through Cover rule apply to units where some models have MTC and other models do not?

RULING

The -1M from difficult terrain affects the entire unit, even models not actually in that terrain, but models with the Move through cover special rule will not suffer the -1 Movement penalty.

If a character has joined the unit without Move through cover, he will suffer the penalty (the unit won't) and the unit moves at the modified speed of its slowest model.

In Regard to the higher or lower dice during charges, the unit will always take the lower die if any models do not have the Move Through Cover rule, even if the characters do not actually cross difficult terrain.

References: Move Through Cover

#1032 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can my Battle Standard Bearer have a higher Leadership than my General?

RULING

No. As stated on page 203, the General is the character with the highest Leadership. If this means not upgrading the character with the highest Leadership in your army to be your Battle Standard Bearer so that they can be your General, so be it.

References: Characters p202

#1047 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If my army includes a Mercenary character, can I make them my General?

RULING

No. An army’s General must be one of the characters listed in the 'characters' section of the army composition list you are using.

References: Characters p202

#1091 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit that is subject to any Leadership modifiers uses the General's Inspiring Presence rule (or any other rule that allows a unit to use the Leadership of a nearby character), does the unit ignore those modifiers?

RULING

No, the modifier will still apply. For example, if a unit loses a round of combat to a Terror causing enemy, the -1 modifier to Leadership caused by Terror applies to whichever Leadership characteristic the unit makes its Break test against, be that its own or that of a nearby character.

References: Characters p202

#1109 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If my Battle Standard Bearer refuses a challenge and retires from combat, can other units still benefit from their "Hold Your Ground" special rule?

RULING

Not whilst that character's unit is still engaged with the model that issued the challenge. Battle standards are somewhat less inspirational whilst being used as a blanket to hide beneath.

References: Characters p202

#1129 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a character takes a chariot as a mount, do they replace one of the crew?

RULING

No. The points you pay for a chariot include its crew, whether that chariot is included in your army on its own or as a mount for a character. However, in reality it might prove difficult to fit a character and the full complement of crew into the chariot model itself. If so, it is perfectly acceptable to remove one or more of the crew models to make space for the character. In such cases, we can think of the missing crew model's profile(s) as a way of representing that the beasts pulling a character's chariot are bound to be bigger, stronger and better trained than normal.

References: Characters p202

#1154 GW FAQ

QUESTION

A character mounted on a ridden monster or a chariot can choose to use their own or their mount's armour value, whichever is better. If the character wears magic armour but I choose to use the mount's armour value, can I still claim other benefits conferred by the magic armour?

RULING

No. You must use a magic item fully or not at all.

References: Characters p202

#1169 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If I have a character with an armour value of 6+ mounted on a chariot with an armour value of 4+, for example, am I obliged to use the chariot's armour value?

RULING

No, you choose whichever armour value is better. However, allowing for magical armour and other special rules, 'better' is somewhat subjective. Obviously an armour value of 4+ is better than one of 6+ but there is often more to deciding which armour to use than just the armour value it offers, many types of magic armour confer additional bonuses that make them better. Basically, when the rules say 'choose', they are giving you a choice.

References: Characters p202

#1188 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a character mounted on a ridden monster or chariot carries a shield, does that improve the mount's armour value?

RULING

No, a shield is carried by the character, not the mount.

References: Characters p202

#1190 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does the presence in a unit of a character whose base takes up the space of two or more models in two or more ranks reduce that unit’s rank bonus?

RULING

No.

References: Characters p202

#1202 GW FAQ

QUESTION

A Clumsy unit cannot be joined by a character that is not also Clumsy, but can a Clumsy character join a unit that is not Clumsy?

RULING

Yes.

References: Characters p202

#1209 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a unit that is joined by a character of a different troop type gain the rules associated with the character’s troop type?

RULING

No.

References: Characters p202

#1217 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a character who is within the fighting rank of their unit but not in base contact with the enemy move through the ranks so that they are?

RULING

No. Characters can move through the ranks into the fighting rank, but cannot move within the fighting rank.

References: Characters p202

#1226 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a character be placed amongst a unit's command group?

RULING

Yes.

References: Characters p202

#1230 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If there is no space for a character in the front rank of a unit with the Press of Battle rule, can they join the second rank?

RULING

No, characters must be placed in the front rank. If this is not possible, they retire to the rear.

References: Characters p202

#1237 GW FAQ

QUESTION

A fighting rank cannot contain more characters than it does rank and file models. In the case of a unit with the Press of Battle rule, does this include rank and file models in a second fighting rank?

RULING

No. No single fighting rank can contain more characters than it does rank and file models. It doesn’t matter how many fighting ranks a unit might have.

References: Characters p202

#1243 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can characters displace command group models into the second rank of a unit with the Press of Battle rule?

RULING

No, command group models must always be in the front rank of their unit.

References: Characters p202

#1249 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a character is in any rank of a unit other than the front rank (or the first fighting rank, in the case of units engaged in combat), for any reason, do they confer any bonuses onto the unit?

RULING

No, not unless they have a special rule stating otherwise. Characters must lead from the front or retire to the rear.

References: Characters p202

#1253 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Warband character (as described on page 180) joins a Warband with a Rank Bonus of one or more, does the modifier to their Leadership characteristic increase their Command range?

RULING

Yes.

References: Characters p202

#1256 GW FAQ

QUESTION

My unit wishes to shoot at an enemy lone character. However, an enemy unit that is more than 3" away from that character presents a closer target. Can I shoot at the lone character?

RULING

Yes. The rule that a lone character cannot be shot at unless they are the closest target only extends to units they are within 3" of. If a unit is more than 3" from the character, it does not protect them, regardless of how close it is to the enemy.

References: Characters p202

#1258 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can my unit shoot at an enemy character that is within 3" of an enemy unit if that unit is not itself an eligible target?

RULING

No. If the requirements given on page 206 are met, the character cannot be targeted.

References: Characters p202

#1260 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a character that has joined a unit of models of a different troop type be targeted by enemy shooting? For example, if a character whose troop type is 'light chariot' joins a unit of 'regular infantry', can they be targeted?

RULING

Yes. What's more, they don't get a "Look Out, Sir!" save either.

References: Characters p202

#1262 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a character joins a unit that carries a magic standard, do its effects extend to the character?

RULING

Yes. When a character joins a unit they become part of that unit, so magic standards that affect the unit affect them as well.

References: Characters p202

#1265 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a character that has joined a unit be the target of a spell that would give them a special rule that prevents them from joining a unit (Ethereal, for example)?

RULING

No. If casting a spell would cause a situation the rules specifically prohibit, the spell cannot be cast.

References: Characters p202

#1266 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Warband character joins a unit that isn't a Warband, does that unit's Rank Bonus modify their Leadership characteristic?

RULING

No.

References: Characters p202

#1268 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Cannon do not directly target enemy models; they target a point on the ground. How does this work with Targeting Lone characters? Can a cannon be fired in such a way as to hit a Lone character that would normally be protected from shooting by their proximity to a friendly unit?

RULING

The purpose of the Targeting Lone Characters rule is to protect characters from enemy shooting, even from shooting that does not follow the usual rules (though it does not protect them from templates). Therefore, and in the spirit of this rule, unless they are the closest target to the cannon, an enemy character that is within 3" of a friendly unit that contains five or more models of the same troop type cannot be struck by a cannonball, even if their base lies directly under the path of the bouncing cannonball. However, if a Lone character's base lies directly underneath the strike point of a cannonball, they are hit.

References: Characters p202

#1271 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Some magic weapons or special rules allow specific models within a unit to be targeted. Do such attacks ignore the "Look Out, Sir!" rule?

RULING

No.

References: Characters p202

#1273 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a named character is equipped with a mundane weapon such as a lance or cavalry spear and a magic weapon, can they choose to use the lance or cavalry spear, or must they use their magic weapon?

RULING

They must use their magic weapon. However, some named characters will carry a 'back-up' weapon which they can use should their magic weapon be destroyed.

References: Characters p202

#1275 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Some characters have special abilities that require a Leadership test. If the character is slain, do these abilities cease to apply immediately, like a spell?

RULING

Yes.

References: Characters p202

Combat

#1006 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Models that are in base contact with different enemy units can choose which to attack. When is this decision made, at the start of the combat or when the model's turn to fight comes?

RULING

When the model's turn to fight comes.

References: Combat

#1072 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit's fighting rank is engaged with two enemy units, one of which is a lone character engaged in a challenge, can models within the unit's fighting rank ignore the character even if they are closer to it than to the other enemy unit, or are their attacks lost?

RULING

Models not engaged in a challenge cannot direct their attacks against models that are. In other words, any models that would normally have to direct their attacks against the character are free to direct them instead against the other unit their unit is engaged with.

References: Combat

#1081 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a model fights, must it make all of its attacks, or can it choose to make fewer?

RULING

If a model is able to fight, it must make all of its attacks.

References: Combat

#1102 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Models in a fighting rank cannot fight if they are killed before they have a chance to fight. But can models in a second fighting rank (in the case of units within the Press of Battle rule) fight if the model in front is slain, and can a model make a supporting attack if the model(s) in the fighting ranks(s) in front of it are slain?

RULING

Yes. Unless they have been killed, models that are in a fighting rank or that are able to make supporting attacks can do so as normal. In other words, casualties inflicted reduce, firstly, the number of models in the fighting rank(s) that are able to fight (starting with the first fighting rank) and, secondly, the number of models in the 'supporting rank' that are able to fight.

References: Combat

#1131 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit with the Press of Battle rule has not yet fought, models from the end of the first fighting rank will 'close in' as described on page 150, into base contact with the enemy. But can models from the second fighting rank 'step forward' into base contact and fight immediately?

RULING

Yes. As stated on page 150, models cannot fight during a phase in which they stepped forward into a fighting rank. However, models already in a fighting rank can step forward and close in as described, maximising their number of Attacks.

References: Combat

#1143 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does Press of Battle apply to a unit's flank and rear arcs, or just to its front arc?

RULING

If a unit has and is able to use the Press of Battle rule, it can do so regardless of which of its arcs the enemy is engaged with.

References: Combat

#1171 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How many attacks can a model with a split profile make if it is in the fighting rank but not in base contact with the enemy?

RULING

A model with a split profile consists of not one model, but several, all sharing the same base. Therefore, each model on that base could make a single attack. In the case of a cavalry model, for example, this would be one attack from the rider and one from their mount.

References: Combat

#1179 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If two units are engaged across a low linear obstacle, are they limited to making just a single attack because they aren't in base contact?

RULING

No. Whilst a charging unit will become disordered, and whilst Impact Hits and Stomp Attacks cannot be made due to the presence of the obstacle (as stated above), units are otherwise able to fight normally across a low linear obstacle, as if they were in base contact.

References: Combat

#1197 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Close Order unit of just one model claim the Close Order combat result bonus?

RULING

Yes, provided it has a high enough Unit Strength (as per the errata on page 1). A unit of just one model is still a unit.

References: Combat

#1203 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens to a unit that Gives Ground whilst within 2" of the edge of the battlefield?

RULING

Should any part of a unit cross beyond the edge of the battlefield whilst it is Giving Ground, the entire unit is removed from play and counts as having been destroyed.

References: Combat

#1211 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens to a unit that cannot Give Ground due to the presence of another unit?

RULING

The unit's movement stops immediately, as if it were surrounded.

References: Combat

#1218 GW FAQ

QUESTION

A pursuing unit must move directly towards the fleeing enemy, but must it move forwards whilst doing so, or can it move sideways?

RULING

As stated on page 123, units must move forwards unless performing a manoeuvre (or when Giving Ground). This includes whilst pursuing.

References: Combat

#1223 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit has to pivot before fleeing from an enemy it is engaged in combat with, must it make Peril tests?

RULING

No. As stated on page 125, units ignore other units whilst pivoting.

References: Combat

#1233 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens if a unit that wishes to make a pursuit or overrun move cannot move due to the presence of other units?

RULING

It may happen that it is simply impossible for a pursuing or overrunning unit to move without it ending up 'on top' of another unit. In such cases, the unit does not move, but is considered to have made a pursuit or overrun move.

References: Combat

#1239 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit completely destroys its enemy in combat and makes an overrun move, can it attempt to reform after moving?

RULING

Unless it pursued into a fresh enemy, yes. A unit that overruns makes a normal pursuit move and, since its enemy has already been wiped out, it may attempt to reform as if it had run down its foe, as described on page 129.

References: Combat

#1245 GW FAQ

QUESTION

On page 157 it states that units that pursue and catch an enemy that Fell Back in Good Order count as having charged during the next turn, but what exactly does this mean?

RULING

Exactly what it says – the pursuing unit counts as having charged its enemy during the next turn of the game, when the combat is fought, even though the unit will not actually have moved during that turn. This means rules and weapons that can only be used by charging models can be used, that Initiative modifiers for charging are granted (based on the distance the unit pursued), and so forth.

References: Combat

Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1030 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If I give armour runes to an Anvil of Doom, does the Anvil itself benefit, or just the crew?

RULING

Just the crew.

References: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1042 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How does Master Rune of Adamant work on an Anvil of Doom?

RULING

It increases the Toughness of the crew, but not of the anvil itself.

References: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1095 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can the champion in a unit of Royal Clan Warriors or Hammerers put weapon runes on a gromril great axe or great hammer?

RULING

No. Weapon runes can only be inscribed upon a hand weapon or great weapon, as defined in the Warhammer: the Old World rulebook. The Royal Clan Warriors' gromril great axes and the Hammerers' great hammers are unique types of weapon, each with their own profile and rules.

References: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1104 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a model hits an enemy unit using the Deathblow special rule, does that hit benefit from that model's special rules?

RULING

Yes.

References: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1123 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If the musician and/or standard bearer in a unit of Slayers are models that have been upgraded to Giant Slayers, what happens if they are slain, is their instrument and/or standard picked up by another Giant Slayer or by a Troll Slayer?

RULING

It rather depends on the models that remain in the unit. If any Giant Slayers remain, they will pick up the instrument or standard, replacing the slain models like for like. If no Giant Slayers remain, a Troll Slayer will take their place.

Note also that Giant Slayers are not unit champions. Thus in a unit of Slayers, the standard bearer would be the last model removed.

References: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1158 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit bearing a standard inscribed with the Master Rune of Hesitation Falls Back in Good Order and is pursued and caught by an enemy unit, does the rune take effect?

RULING

Yes. When a pursuing unit catches an enemy unit that Fell Back in Good Order, it counts as having charged that unit.

References: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1166 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit of enemy infantry charges a unit with the Master Rune of Hesitation, can it make use of the Press of Battle rule to fight in two ranks?

RULING

No. Although the Rune prevents a charging enemy unit from using certain weapons or special rules, the unit has still charged, and thus cannot make use of the Press of Battle rule.

References: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

#1178 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit of enemy infantry charges a unit with the Master Rune of Hesitation, does it gain the Initiative bonus for charging?

RULING

Yes. The Master Rune of Hesitation only prevents the use of certain weapons and special rules.

References: Dwarfen Mountain Holds

Empire of Man

#1011 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Steam Tank fire both its steam cannon and steam gun during the same Shooting phase?

RULING

Yes.

References: Empire of Man

#1048 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Steam Tank's steam cannon fire grapeshot?

RULING

Yes. Grapeshot can be fired by any cannon (i.e., any weapon that fires using the 'Cannon Fire' special rule), as described on page 226 of the Warhammer: The Old World rulebook.

References: Empire of Man

#1082 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Steam Tank's Engineer Commander and steam cannon both shoot during the same turn?

RULING

Yes. The Engineer Commander doesn't fire the steam cannon, imagine there's a (very hot and bothered) crew hidden away inside the Steam Tank whose endeavours leave the Engineer Commander free to fire their own weapon.

References: Empire of Man

#1108 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Before a Steam Tank charges, can it use the Steam Power special rule to increase its Movement?

RULING

No. The Steam Power special rule can be used by a Steam Tanks, a model that cannot march, instead of marching. In other words, in instances where most models or units would increase their movement by marching, a Steam Tank can instead make use of the Steam Power special rule. Charging is not such an instance.

References: Empire of Man

#1126 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Are unsaved wounds caused by the mount of a model bearing the Laurels of Victory worth 2 combat result points?

RULING

No, only unsaved wounds caused by the bearer (the rider) count.

References: Empire of Man

#1159 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a model bearing the Laurels of Victory Stands & Shoots as a charge reaction, causing one or more unsaved wounds, are those unsaved wounds each worth 2 combat result points?

RULING

No.

References: Empire of Man

#1165 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does the Griffon Standard allow a unit to claim a higher Rank Bonus than normal for its troop type?

RULING

Yes. As stated in the item's rules, a unit carrying the Griffon Standard can claim a Rank Bonus of +2 for each extra rank behind the first, rather than the usual +1, meaning a unit with two extra ranks could claim a Rank Bonus of +4, rather than the usual +2.

References: Empire of Man

General Principles

#1034 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Players have choices to make throughout the game. If both players have the same choice to make at the same time, who chooses first?

RULING

The active player always chooses first. Sometimes this will be advantageous, sometimes not, but choosing first is the active player’s prerogative.

References: General Principles p92

#1053 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a specific natural roll triggers an effect, is that effect still triggered if the dice is re-rolled and the re-roll gives a different result?

RULING

No. When you re-roll a dice, the previous roll is discarded. This includes any effects that roll may have triggered.

References: General Principles p92

#1094 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If I mark the position of a unit then proceed to move it before putting it back where it was and moving it again, does this count as a take-back?

RULING

Yes, absolutely.

References: General Principles p92

#1117 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens if a Hit is rolled on the Scatter dice for an object that moves in a random direction, do I use the small arrow on the Hit icon to determine the direction?

RULING

Essentially, objects that move in a random direction scatter, as described on page 95. Such objects only move in the direction shown by the small arrow on the Hit icon if the rules tell you they do so. Otherwise, the object does not move.

References: General Principles p92

#1134 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens if a scatter roll causes any part of an object to cross beyond the edge of the battlefield?

RULING

The object is removed from play.

References: General Principles p92

#1152 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a model is required to make a Leadership test using its own Leadership characteristic, can it use the Leadership of a different model, the General for example, instead?

RULING

No. When the rules state a model must make a Leadership test using its own Leadership, it must use its own Leadership.

References: General Principles p92

#1176 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Some single use special rules and magic items require a Leadership test to use. Do they count as having been used even if this test is failed?

RULING

Yes.

References: General Principles p92

#1181 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Is there a maximum beyond which characteristics cannot be modified?

RULING

Unless a rule specifies a maximum, no.

References: General Principles p92

#1198 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit arrayed in Close Order or Open Order formation be one model wide?

RULING

Yes.

References: General Principles p92

#1199 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If some of my opponent’s attacks cause multiple Wounds to be lost per unsaved wound they cause, in what order are those unsaved wounds applied to my unit?

RULING

Apply unsaved wounds to a unit one at a time and one model at a time. When a model is reduced to zero Wounds on its profile, it is removed from play as a casualty (as described on page 102). If a model loses more Wounds than it has on its profile, the excess wounds are lost – they do not spill over onto other models in the same unit.

With this in mind, apply unsaved wounds that cause models to lose all of their remaining Wounds first (Killing Blows and Monster Slaying Blows, for example), then unsaved wounds that cause multiple Wounds to be lost (Multiple Wounds (X), for example), then, finally, unsaved wounds that cause a single Wound to be lost.

References: General Principles p92

#1214 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can models choose not to make Armour, Ward or Regeneration saves if it has them?

RULING

No. If a model can attempt to make a save, it must.

References: General Principles p92

#1220 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit with the Press of Battle rule has two fighting ranks, can I remove casualties from the second rank?

RULING

No. Models in the first fighting rank, the rank in base contact with the enemy, fall first as casualties.

References: General Principles p92

#1225 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit contains models of two different troop types, how do I determine its maximum rank bonus?

RULING

In such cases, the troop type of the majority of the models determines the unit’s maximum rank bonus.

References: General Principles p92

#1235 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How does a Close Order unit of just one model act, is it still a Close Order formation, or does it act like a Skirmisher?

RULING

A Close Order unit always acts as such, even if it only contains a single model.

References: General Principles p92

#1241 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a unit count as being obscured when some of the models within it are behind others?

RULING

No. A unit cannot be obscured from the enemy by itself. What’s more, models within a unit do not obscure the enemy from other models within the same unit. They either completely block line of sight, or present no obstruction.

References: General Principles p92

#1247 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can different saves be combined together to improve their save value? For example, if a model has two Ward saves, can they be combined to give a single Ward save with a better Warding value?

RULING

No, values given as a target number cannot be combined to lower the target number. If a model has two or more Ward saves, as per the example, simply use the best.

References: General Principles p92

High Elf Realms

#1002 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Wizard with the Warden of Saphery Elven Honour purchase magic armour?

RULING

No.

References: High Elf Realms

#1062 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does the Martial Prowess special rule allow models to make supporting attacks with weapons that do not have the Fight in Extra Rank special rule?

RULING

No. Martial Prowess grants the ability to make supporting attacks to the flank or rear, as well as to its front. It does not grant the ability to make supporting attacks to models not normally able to do so.

References: High Elf Realms

Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1026 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Bretonnian army pray for the Blessing of the Lady if it includes an allied contingent?

RULING

Yes, however an allied contingent of Bretonnians taken as part of any other army cannot pray. In order for Bretonnians to pray, the army they are part of must have the Blessings of the Lady rule, which only Kingdom of Bretonnia armies have.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1068 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a character with the Shield of the Lady special rule retire to the rear of their unit after issuing a challenge, enabling them to avoid their opponent's attacks?

RULING

No. Once a challenge has been issued and accepted neither combatant can retire until the challenge is resolved. Chivalry demands it.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1083 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a unit that includes a Grail Monk with a Blessed Triptych lose Stubborn if the Grail Monk is killed before the rule can be used?

RULING

No. As per the errata, a unit that includes a Blessed Triptych becomes Stubborn, regardless of whether or not the model that purchased that upgrade has been killed or not.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1103 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit with Defensive Stakes be hit by Impact Hits or Stomp Attacks by a charging enemy?

RULING

Yes. Whilst the stakes might do tremendous damage to 'cavalry' and 'chariots', the momentum of such models when they charge will carry them into the archers, although they may be turned to kindling in the attempt.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1124 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a unit of Battle Pilgrims that includes a Grail Reliquae benefit from Blessings of the Lady, or just the Grail Reliquae itself?

RULING

If the unit includes a Grail Reliquae, the entire unit gains Blessings of the Lady.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1157 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens if a unit in Lance formation that declares a charge finds its movement blocked by the presence of an enemy unit to its flank, where the unit gets wider?

RULING

Such situations are covered by the rules for Accidental Contact During a Charge. If the Lance can wheel around the enemy unit, it should do so. If not, the Lance has two choices; halting its charge or continuing ahead and making contact with the enemy unit, treating it as a redirected charge.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1177 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How does a bolt thrower work when shooting at a unit in Lance formation?

RULING

The number of models hit is based on the number of ranks overall. For example, a Lance of six knights (arranged in ranks of one, two and three models) would suffer three hits. When a Lance is shot in its flank by a bolt thrower, the number of hits is based on the widest file. To continue the example above, three models would be hit based on the depth of the unit.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1182 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a character whose mount has a different sized base to the models in a unit making up a Lance formation wishes to join that unit, where should I place the model?

RULING

The Lance formation offers a bit more flexibility than other formations. For example, it is perfectly acceptable to place a character such as a Duke or a Baron at the front of the Lance should you wish. In the case of a Handmaiden of the Lady, the Shield of the Lady special rule allows such models to be placed at the rear of such units. Alternatively, they can be placed within the unit. In this case, the extra base size will make very little difference to the shape of the unit.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1192 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a unit in Lance formation is engaged in combat, every model on the outside counts as being in base contact. How many enemy models count as being in base contact with the Lance?

RULING

Every model within the first fighting rank that is within a number of inches equal to its Movement characteristic of the Lance. In the case of enemy regular or heavy infantry, the second fighting rank is not in base contact – there is another rank in the way.

When a Lance charges, it pierces deep into the enemy formation, pushing warriors back and causing the enemy lines to close around it. It’s very hard to show this on the table though, hence the abstraction.

Note that this can create an area of ‘dead ground’ between a Lance and a unit it is engaged in combat with. If any enemy units are caught within this, refer to the rules covering ‘accidental contact’ on page 131 of the Warhammer: the Old World rulebook.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1200 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Is a charging Lance blunted if an enemy unit counter charges it?

RULING

No. As both units are charging, the clause that a Lance is blunted if it is charged and does not counter charge is negated.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

#1208 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit with the Finest Warhorses special rule re-roll the dice when using Swiftstride?

RULING

No. Finest Warhorses allows a unit to re-roll its Charge roll, but the D6 rolled when using Swiftstride is not part of the charge roll; it is rolled to give a modifier to the result of the Charge roll.

References: Kingdom of Bretonnia

LLO

#298

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

If one of the participants of a challenge is defending a Low linear obstacle, are both characters treated as being in base to base contact?

RULING

No, still treat them as having the LLO between them - no Impact or Stomp Attacks.

References: GW FAQ

#306

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Ethereal treats all terrain as open ground, and Grinding Wheels does the same for Low Lineae Obstacles. How does this interact with units that are defending a LLO?

RULING

Because the charge is a move, these units fully ignore the LLO and will move on top of it. For all purposes, units with these rules ignore defended LLO rules.

References: Ethereal, Grinding Wheels

#307

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

How do you charge a unit behind a defended Low linear obstacle?

RULING

Charge the LLO and align towards the LLO instead of the unit. Note that you have to charge the LLO in a way that at least one model of the charging unit is in the front arc of the defending unit, else the charge is considered to be a failed charge. Maximise in a way that as many models as possible are within M" of each other. Also remember that a Lance blunts if charging a unit behind a LLO because it is considered to have conducted a disordered charge.

#320

4 Combat Phase

QUESTION

Skirmishers can defend a Low Linear Obstacle (LLO) by "moving as many models as possible into base contact with it." What exactly does this mean?

RULING

In order to defend a LLO, a skirmish unit must move as many models as can reach the LLO within a single movement, and have at least one model in the unit end its move with one side of its base fully in contact with the long edge of the LLO. When a charge is declared against the defending skirmish unit, the enemy unit will move as normal for charging a skirmish unit. If they contact the opposite long edge of the defended LLO, the unit will then wheel to align to the LLO. The defending skirmish unit will then form ranks as though there were not a gap between the two units, attempting to move as many models as possible into (not technically) B2B and forming ranks behind those models as normal.

References: GW FAQ, Skirmishers in Combat CRB 185

#321

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Low linear obstacles and Flank Charges - the rules only state the unit is counting as defending a LLO. Does a unit defending a LLO get the bonus to all arcs?

RULING

Only the Front arc counts as being defended, even for a LLO that is magically summoned or an entrenched unit. If the charging unit charges on the flank and has not sufficient movement to charge around the LLO to get into the flank, it is allowed to straddle the LLO and charge through difficult terrain, ending up disrupted.

References: GW FAQ, Defended Low Linear Obstacle CRB 270

#322

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

How do you defend an Low linear obstacle? Aka how do you move up to it to defend it?

RULING

You have to wheel forward, until your front rank is parallel aligned with the LLO. You do not count as defending the low linear obstacle if your front rank exceeds the LLO at any point or if your front rank is not entirely aligned to the LLO, be it due to other models or insuffcient movement .

References: GW FAQ

#407

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

If a unit defending a Low Linear Obstacle, or counting as defending a Low Linear Obstacle (Dig In, Earthen Ramparts), is charged by an enemy unit that is unable to align, does the defending unit have to align against the enemy unit, hence losing its status?

RULING

Only for Dug In or Earthen Ramparts, as there is no physical LLO that prevents aligning. With a physical Low Linear Obstacle, the units cannot align to each other, as no base contact to align on was established.

Lores of Magic

#1038 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If the spell Arcane Urgency is used to move a unit with Random Movement, can the unit move into contact with an enemy unit?

RULING

No. Whilst a unit with Random Movement can move into base contact with an enemy unit during the Compulsory Moves sub-phase, Arcane Urgency causes units to move when the spell is cast, during the Remaining Moves sub-phase.

References: Lores of Magic

#1058 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit upon which Earthen Ramparts has been cast is obliged to declare a charge (if the unit is Frenzied or Impetuous, for example), must it do so? If so, can it make a charge move?

RULING

Earthen Ramparts does not prevent a unit from declaring a charge, it prevents it from charging. In other words, yes the unit must declare a charge if obliged to do so. However, because the unit cannot charge, it does not move at all and the charge is failed.

References: Lores of Magic

#1099 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit upon which Earthen Ramparts has been cast make a Counter Charge charge reaction?

RULING

No.

References: Lores of Magic

#1116 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit charges an enemy unit upon which Earthen Ramparts has been cast, must it follow all the rules for charging an enemy unit behind a defended low linear obstacle, even though there is no such physical terrain between the two units?

RULING

Yes. A unit upon which Earthen Ramparts has been cast counts as being behind a defended low linear obstacle when charged. Think of the spell’s effect as representing a magically manifested obstacle between, rather than a physical terrain feature.

References: Lores of Magic

#1122 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Whilst Drain Magic is in play, does it increase the Casting Value of Bound spells?

RULING

Yes.

References: Lores of Magic

#1137 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can the spell Spectral Doppelganger from the Lore of Illusion be used with a magic weapon that allows the wielder to make only a single attack?

RULING

No. Weapons limited to a single attack can only inflict a single hit.

References: Lores of Magic

#1145 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How does the Spectral Doppelganger spell interact with weapons that have either the Strike First or Strike Last special rule?

RULING

The spell is cast at the Wizard's Initiative, meaning attacks generated by the spell are made at the Wizard's Initiative. However, if the casting Wizard wishes to use a weapon with the Strike Last special rule, those attacks are made at Initiative 1.

References: Lores of Magic

Low linear obstacle

#193

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Does a unit gain the benefit of a defended Low linear obstacle when the charging unit ends the charge move on top of the LLO in base contact to the unit or at a part of the unit where there is no LLO

RULING

The last sentence only mentions Fly (X) as an exception, so a charging unit always suffers the disordered charge but only loses impact hits and stomp attacks and full attacks if it has no base contact/for models without base contact

References: Low Linear Obstacle CRB 159

Magic

#32 Clarification

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

Phantasmagoria Spell - Does it count for out of movement phase movements? Does it trigger if you don't move?

RULING

It will trigger for any movement (in or out of phase) that ends within range - but it will not trigger if you choose not to move.

References: Phantasmagoria CRB 325

#36

0 General Rules

QUESTION

How do Items interact that let you throw an additional dice and discard the lowest and items that enforce you to roll an additional dice and discard the highest? Do they cancel themselves out so you just roll 2 dice or do they make you roll 4 dice discarding highest and lowest (making double 1s even more likely)

RULING

You would roll 4 dice, discarding the highest and the lowest.

References: Power Scroll CRB 343

#40

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

Can a unit using the Fly(X) special rule pass freely without penalty above areas "treated as" or "counting as" difficult, dangerous or impassable terrain due to the effect of a spell (in particular Magical Vortex)?

RULING

No. Fly(X) allows the unit to move over physical terrain features without penalty, but Magical Vortexes and areas affected by a spell are not terrain features. "Magical Vortexes are considered tall enough to affect even models flying high above the battlefield", so units that Fly through them or their area of effect are affected as any other unit (e.g. -1 to movement, low dice if charging, dangerous terrain tests, blocked by impassable, damage from vortexes).

References: Magical Vortexes GW FAQ 1.5.1 8

#48 Clarification

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Does warpstone token trigger only on a D6 roll of a natural one. Or does it trigger on a 1,2 on the D6.

RULING

A Natural roll of 1 on a D3 is a 1 or 2 on a D6

References: Skaven

#180

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Spectral Doppelganger - Which weapon can a model use for the spell? When are the hits of a Strike Last Weapon resolved? What happens if the caster dies before the attacks are resolved after he made the cast?

RULING

Any melee weapon the model carries can be used, magical or not. For a Strike Last weapon, the attacks are resolved at Initiative 1, unmodified as the spell gives you a initiative value. If the caster dies before the attacks are made, the attacks will be resolved at I1.

References: Spectral Doppelganger CRB 331 GW FAQ

#198

1-3 Strategy Phase Conjuration

QUESTION

If a spell or ability states “all units within y may” or “all units within y gain an effect”, what happens if a unit moves outside of Y or the caster moves?

RULING

All units that are within Y may benefit from that effect, given they are within Y at the time they want to use the effect (aka the effect moves with the caster for the whole duration of X).

References: Hellish Vigour Khsar's Incantation of the Desert Wind

#208

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Do you have to be eligible for a wizardly dispell attempt to use arcane "instead of a (wizardly) dispell items"?

RULING

Yes, the GW FAQ to Glowing Green Amulet is only about this specific item

References: GW FAQ Ravening Hordes

#217

3 Shooting Phase

QUESTION

Are hits suffered by miscast magical attacks?

RULING

Yes, given the nature of spellcasting, they are magical attacks

#240 Clarification

3-1 Shooting Phase Declare Target

QUESTION

How do "laser beam" spells and attacks such as Gaze of Gork, Burning Gaze and Lightning Strike (from the Warp Lightning Canon) work?

When the game rules calls for using a line (to determine models hit from "laser beams" special rules such as Gaze of Gork, or by models with the Cannon Fire special rule, or for the secondary objective Domination), what is the thickness of the line? Can it ever touch two models in a formed up unit at the same time over the same point, given that these models touch?

RULING

Once the spell is cast, choose a direction, then determine the distance of the line. This line does not require a target and therefore ignores all targeting rules, i.e. it can be drawn over LoS-blocking terrain, hit models in combat, lone characters, fanatics, and models the caster doesn't have LoS to.

In geometry, a straight line is an infinitely long object with no width, depth, or curvature. Although models in a formed up unit are touching edge-to-edge, they do not share a space, and since the line has no width, there is no point on the line that can be over two models simultaneously. Practically, this means that a laser beam can only be crossing a single model at any given point, and so can never be shot exactly alongside the line where two files (or ranks) of a formed up units touch in order to hit both, or exactly over the point where the corners of 4 bases are touching in order to hit all 4. The path of a cannonball follows the same principles, with the added restriction of only being able to hit a single model per rank under the path when firing in the unit's front arc, or per file when firing in the unit's flank. Finally, this means that if a unit straddles over two quarters for Domination, it is not possible to position it so that all of its models are wholly within one quarter or the other.

References: Gaze of Gork, Burning Gaze, Lightning Strike, Warplightning Cannon

#267

3-1 Shooting Phase Declare Target

QUESTION

Can a champion shoot magic missiles (from bound spells or wizarding hat or if he is a wizard) into another target than his unit?

RULING

Yes, the wording for characters on 209 is the same as for champions on 199. This heavily implies that the exemption also counts for champions.

References: Characters and Shooting CRB 209, Champions CRB 199

#268

3-1 Shooting Phase Declare Target

QUESTION

Can characters shoot multiple magic missiles per turn into different targets? A lone character would still be treated as a unit and therefore has to target the same unit?

RULING

Yes he can, the exemption for magic missiles on 209 is to be applied - a character can divide his magic missiles into different targets, chosing targets when each spell is cast.

References: Characters and Shooting CRB 209

#271

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

How is a unit of skirmishers moved by the spell Travel Mystical Pathway?

RULING

Draw a 12" radius around the whole unit. Each model can be replaced anywhere within that radius in coherency, and at least 6" away from any enemy unit.

#272

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can you cast a Remains in Play spell, that is already casted?

RULING

Yes. While the rulebook says no, GW FAQ clarifies that the spell can be attempted to cast, but the current active spell is ended on the attempt.

References: GW FAQ

#279

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can you decide not to use Lore Familiar, even if the wizard bought the item?

RULING

If the Wizard opts not to do it they don’t get any spells at all RAW

References: Lore Familiar CRB 343

#285

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Big Smartz: If a unit failed a stupidity test but succeeds another one before my next start of turn sub-phase, is the unit still stupid ?: Can the unit wound automatically?

RULING

No, a stupid unit ceases to be stupid if it succeeds a stupidity test.

References: Orcs and Goblins

#315

0 General Rules

QUESTION

When items or abilites do enhance the Range of a Spell, do they also enhance the range of spell effects that are explained in the spells' description?

RULING

Only the range for targeting units is extended, so spell effects are not increased. In Detail: For Vortex Spells, the range of effect is not enhanced, only the range for template placement. For Conveyance pells, the target range is increased but not the range of replacement (Travel Mystical Pathways, Infernal Gateway). For Spells with Self range, nothing is increased. For Gaze of Gork, the Range is extended.

#319

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

Can conveyance spells be cast on units or targets who already moved during that Movement Phase, including charging, fleeing or moving during the compulsory moves?

RULING

Yes. Unless otherwise specified in the spell's description, such spells can be cast on any valid friendly unit, respecting the normal criteria for choosing a target (i.e. within the caster's vision arc and range, not engaged in combat). Specific constraints and/or allowances may be defined in the spell's description, e.g. regarding the target unit/character's movement before and/or after the spell, or whether it is fleeing or engaged in combat.

References: GW FAQ

#360

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Can an assailment spell be cast from any position in the unit? Does he need to have base contact?

RULING

The caster has only to be within the fighting rank that is engaged with the unit he wants to target and does not necessarily needs to have base contact to that unit. Note that assailment spells do not lose hits if there is no base contact.

#370

0 General Rules

QUESTION

If a mounted model casts a spell or uses an ability that affects the caster (such as Mantle of Ghorok), but does not reference other models, does the spell affect the caster's mount (including chariot crew and beasts)?

RULING

No. A spell or ability that specifies the caster gaining an effect will only affect the wizard itself and not their mount.

References: Split Profile CRB 97, GW FAQ

#375

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Ogdruz Swampcalla and Branchwraith are now the only non-updated Wizards with the wording "knows spells from the following Lores of Magic” (multiples) instead of “uses spells from … OR …”— does that wording difference create an actual rules distinction?

RULING

Yes. GW did issue an errata to the other wizards and did not issue an errata to these two. It was not a generalized FAQ, so the wordign remains. Therefore, the exceptions may have access to multiple Lores at the same time.

References: GW FAQ, Lores of Magic CRB 106

#379

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

The spell Hidden Pathways allows the target to "perform a Quick Turn, even if it would not normally be able to do so." What exactly does this mean?

RULING

The unit gains Quick Turn and can use it even after marching or if it is not in Open Order formation

#388

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

How many spells does a Cathay L4 wizard equipped with the Scrolls of Wei-jin and the Learned Feng Shi Bo know?

RULING

5 Spells

References: Grand Cathay

#389

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

If a bray-shaman in a Wild Herd army chooses to not use the +1 to cast or dispel from Dark Coven on a spell that they miscast, do friendly wizards within their command range still suffer the effect of that miscast?

RULING

No. The miscast is shared with friendly wizards only when a bray-shaman chooses to use the +1 from Dark Coven before rolling to cast or dispel.

References: Dark Coven Beastmen Brayherds AJ 5

#406

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Q: The GW FAQ says that an effect which can re-roll a failed casting roll does not work on a miscast. Does this ruling also apply to effects that allow you to re-roll any casting roll, such as Tome of Spellcraft?

RULING

Yes, the ruling states that a miscast cannot be re-rolled and this applies regardless of the type of re-roll ability.

References: GW FAQ, Tome of Spellcraft, Buzgob's Knobbly Staff

#1031 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How many spells can a Wizard attempt to cast during a single phase? For example, if a Wizard knows a Magical Vortex and a Magic Missile, can they attempt to cast both during the same Shooting phase?

RULING

A Wizard can only cast a number of spells up to their Level of Wizardry per turn, but can attempt to cast multiple spells during a single phase. In other words, should a Level 2 Wizard know two Magic Missiles and one Magical Vortex (three spells), they can only cast two of them per turn, but may cast both during the same phase.

References: Magic p106

#1070 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Casting the same Enchantment or Hex spells on a unit more than once has no further effect, but what about spells with a range of 'Self' that affect all units within a certain distance of the caster?

RULING

Unless stated otherwise, such spells are not cumulative and casting them multiple times will have no further effect.

References: Magic p106

#1087 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Do magic missiles that require the caster to draw a line from their base require a target?

RULING

No. As stated in the spell's description, simply draw a line from the caster's base. Any model the line hits is hit by the spell.

References: Magic p106

#1111 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Wizard has a special rule that applies when they attack an enemy, such as Killing Blow or Armour Bane, is that special rule applied to any spells they may cast?

RULING

Absolutely not.

References: Magic p106

#1133 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Wizard has a magic item or special rule that allows them to re-roll a failed Casting roll, can they re-roll a natural double 1 and avoid a Miscast?

RULING

No. A roll of a natural double 1 isn't merely a failed Casting roll, it is a Miscast, as described on page 109.

References: Magic p106

#1153 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a spell has two Casting Values, do I have to say which I'm attempting to cast the spell at before making my Casting roll?

RULING

No, your casting result determines the 'strength' of the spell. In other words, the higher your casting result, the more power the spell will have and the greater its effect will be.

References: Magic p106

#1173 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Remains in Play spell with two Casting Values is cast at the higher value, which is used when trying to dispel it during the Conjuration sub-phase?

RULING

As stated on page 111, in order to dispel a Remains in Play spell during your Conjuration sub-phase, you must beat the minimum casting value given in the spell's description. This is the case even if the spell was cast at the higher of two given casting values.

References: Magic p106

#1189 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How many Remains in Play spells can I attempt to dispel during my Conjuration sub-phase?

RULING

As many as you wish, or, perhaps more accurately, as many as your opponent has in play and as many as you are able.

References: Magic p106

#1196 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens to a Remains in Play spell that is already in effect if the Wizard that cast it attempts to cast it again?

RULING

It ends immediately.

References: Magic p106

#1204 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a model wearing armour or carrying a shield cast a Bound spell?

RULING

Yes.

References: Magic p106

#1213 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Wizard attempt to dispel a Bound spell by attempting a Wizardly dispel?

RULING

If the Wizard is within range of the model casting the Bound spell and not otherwise prevented from attempting a Wizardly dispel, yes. As stated on page 109, you may attempt to dispel a Bound spell as usual.

References: Magic p106

#1215 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Wizard with a physical attribute that 'counts as' a type of armour (such as a Treeman Ancient's arboreal armour) make Casting or Dispel rolls?

RULING

Yes. Whilst such attributes are as protective as a suit of armour, such models do not wear armour.

References: Magic p106

#1228 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Wizard has joined a unit, can they cast spells from any rank, or must they be in the front rank?

RULING

Unless they have a special rule that states otherwise, a Wizard must be in the front rank (or the first fighting rank) of their unit to cast spells. Like all characters, Wizards bring no benefit to their unit by skulking in the rear ranks.

References: Magic p106

#1234 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a Wizard that has joined a unit need to be in base contact with an enemy model to cast an Assailment spell, or do they only need to be within the fighting rank?

RULING

They do not need to be in base contact, but they must be in the first fighting rank.

References: Magic p106

#1236 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Wizard declines a challenge and retires from combat, does their unit lose the benefits of any range 'Self' spells that Wizard has cast?

RULING

Yes.

References: Magic p106

#1242 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit with the Fly (X) special rule moves over a magical vortex that counts as dangerous terrain, is it affected by it?

RULING

Yes. Magical vortexes are considered tall enough to affect even models that are flying high above the battlefield.

References: Magic p106

Magic Items

#1019 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a character replace the armour with which they come equipped with a lighter, magical armour in order to bypass restrictions imposed on other upgrades?

RULING

A character can replace one type of armour with another. However, for the purposes of any available upgrades that are restricted based on the type of armour worn, the character is still considered to be wearing the armour they come equipped with.

References: Magic Items

#1049 GW FAQ

QUESTION

For the purposes of other upgrades, what types of armour are the Armour of Silvered Steel and the Armour of Meteoric Iron?

RULING

If a suit of magic armour gives an armour value of 6+, it should be considered light armour. If it gives an armour value of 5+, it should be considered heavy armour, and if it gives an armour value of 4+ or better, it should be considered full plate armour.

References: Magic Items

#1075 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a weapon's AP reduce the armour value of the Armour of Meteoric Iron?

RULING

No.

References: Magic Items

#1105 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Bearing two or more Obsidian Lodestones gives better Magic Resistance, but does an Obsidian Lodestone improve Magic Resistance granted by a different source?

RULING

No.

References: Magic Items

#1136 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a magic standard that affects a unit's weapons (the Razor Standard, for example) also make those weapons magical, giving them the Magical Attacks special rule?

RULING

Not unless the description of the magic standard in question states that the weapons of a unit carrying it gain the Magical Attacks special rule. Generally speaking, purchasing a magic item doesn't conjure up additional bonuses from the æther.

References: Magic Items

#1156 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can the wearer of the Wizarding Hat cast spells whilst wearing armour?

RULING

Yes. The wearer of the Wizarding Hat is not actually a Wizard – their magical powers are granted by a haunted hat which is not affected by any armour the model may wear.

References: Magic Items

#1167 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can the wearer of the Wizarding Hat also wear a magic helmet, such as the Bedazzling Helm?

RULING

Yes, because one is an enchanted item, the other is a type of magic armour, but we hope anyone equipping a model in such a way would make the effort to depict it wearing two hats!

References: Magic Items

#1183 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Wizard wears the Wizarding Hat, does it increase their Level of Wizardry?

RULING

No. As stated in the item's description, the wearer of the Wizarding Hat is a Level 1 Wizard and knows one randomly generated spell. This is clearly a huge detriment to a powerful Wizard, but might be a boon to any character that is not a Wizard.

References: Magic Items

#1193 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Do potions affect a model's mount?

RULING

No.

References: Magic Items

#1201 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If the Scroll of Transmogrification is successfully used against a Wizard mounted on a ridden monster (a Dragon, for example), what happens to the mount?

RULING

The Wizard is transmogrified, but not their mount. In the example given, you would be left with a Frog riding a Dragon.

References: Magic Items

#1207 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens if a Scroll of Transmogrification is used on a Bound spell?

RULING

After testing against the item's Power Level (in place of its Level of Wizardry), it may be turned into an inanimate frog, rendering it useless until it turns back. During each Start of Turn sub-phase, you may roll a D6 for each transmogrified item in your army to see if it returns to normal, as described on page 343.

References: Magic Items

#1216 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Wizard with a Lore Familiar choose one of their faction's signature spells instead of the signature spell of their chosen lore?

RULING

No.

References: Magic Items

#1222 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How many spells does a Wizard with an Arcane Familiar know? For example, does a Level 3 Wizard know three spells from two Lores (two from one and one from the other), or six spells, three from each Lore?

RULING

An Arcane Familiar does not increase the number of spells a Wizard knows, it simply allows them to know spells from two Lores. Thus a Level 3 Wizard would know three spells from two Lores.

References: Magic Items

#1231 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Some models can be found in one faction's army list, but can be included in an army made using a composition list belonging to a different faction (Dragon Ogre Shaggoths, or units that can be included as Mercenaries, for example). What lists of magic items do such models have access to?

RULING

Models can purchase magic items from the list of common magic items in the Warhammer: the Old World rulebook, or from their own faction's list of magic items. A Dragon Ogre Shaggoth, for example, can purchase items from the common or Beastmen Brayherds magic item lists.

References: Magic Items

Movement

#1028 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What constitutes a 'move'?

RULING

Quite simply, if you touch a model or unit and change its position in any way, it has moved. There are some exceptions to this, a war machine that pivots does not count as having moved, for example, but in the vast majority of cases, the term 'move' follows the broadest definition; if a model or unit shifts its position or changes its location, it has moved.

References: Movement

#1065 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What is the furthest a model can move?

RULING

No model can move more than twice its Movement characteristic or, when movement is determined by a dice roll (such as when a unit charges or flees), further than the distance rolled. There are, of course, exceptions to this, the most obvious being when a unit in Marching Column marches at triple its Movement characteristic, when models are moved by the effect of a spell, when a unit is obliged to continue its move rather than end up 'on top' of another unit, and obligatory moves (such as when a charging unit wheels to align with the enemy, or when a unit pivots before fleeing).

Note that when a unit wheels, those at its rear do not really follow a long, curving path, as it might appear when moving a large block of models on the table. In reality, those models would take a more direct route, following the path of the front rank and resuming their formation behind it. Accordingly, we do not measure the distance moved by models in the rear ranks of a wheeling unit.

Note also that, when a unit is permitted a free manoeuvre before or after moving, this is free in that it does not count towards the move itself, but the limitation that no model can move more than twice its Movement characteristic applies within the manoeuvre.

References: Movement

#1074 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit that rallies and reforms during the Rally Fleeing Units sub-phase move during the Movement phase?

RULING

Yes.

References: Movement

#1119 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit move whilst locked in combat?

RULING

No.

References: Movement

#1141 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Is a unit's maximum possible charge range the maximum distance from an enemy unit at which it can declare a charge, or the maximum distance it can move when making a charge move?

RULING

It is the maximum distance from an enemy unit at which it can declare a charge.

References: Movement

#1146 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a unit performs a manoeuvre, can its front edge pass through another unit?

RULING

No. The only exception to this is when a unit pivots.

References: Movement

#1163 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a unit wheels, is it acceptable for a rear corner to pass through another unit?

RULING

Yes, provided the unit does not end its movement 'on top' of another unit or within 1" of an enemy unit.

References: Movement

#1186 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a unit wheels, do you have to measure the curvature of its movement?

RULING

No, simply measure the unit’s movement in a straight line from the end of the front rank furthest from the corner around which the unit pivots.

References: Movement

#1195 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit will have to wheel before or during a charge, do I have to allow for that when declaring and measuring the charge?

RULING

Yes. Wheeling during a charge is part of the charge move. The free wheel to align once contact is made is free.

References: Movement

#1206 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a unit redresses the ranks, must the width of its front rank be increased or decreased as equally as possible on either side?

RULING

Yes. The exception to this is when the width of the front rank is increased or decreased by an odd number of models. In such cases, one side of the unit will gain or lose one more model than the other side.

References: Movement

#1212 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a unit that has to declare a charge due to being Frenzied or Impetuous have to do so if a friendly unit of Skirmishers lies between it and a potential charge target, obstructing its movement?

RULING

If there is a chance of the Skirmishers moving so that they are no longer an obstruction (if they declare a charge, for example), yes. Otherwise, no.

References: Movement

#1219 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Although it cannot make a charge move, a unit in Marching Column can declare a charge. Why is this?

RULING

There are several reasons. Firstly, a Drilled unit that declares a charge whilst in Marching Column can freely redress its ranks to adopt Combat Order after determining its charge range, but before moving, thus allowing it to make a charge move.

Secondly, units that are obliged to declare a charge in certain circumstances (those that are Frenzied or Impetuous, for example) must do so even whilst in Marching Column. If they cannot make the charge move, they don't move at all and the charge is failed. This prevents Marching Column being used to avoid declaring compulsory charges.

Alternatively, there might be a psychological advantage to declaring a charge with a Marching Column. For example, the unit might cause Terror, or the charge target might already be fleeing.

Of course, it isn't easy to set up situations where such tactics can be used and therein lies the challenge.

References: Movement

#1227 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Drilled unit in Marching Column has to declare a charge due to being Frenzied or Impetuous, can it choose not to use Drilled to redress the ranks and adopt combat order?

RULING

If it is able to redress the ranks (i.e., if there is space for it to do so), no. A unit that is obliged to charge must endeavour to make use of any special rules it has in order to charge. The unit just really wants to charge, and it'll play this game without you if it has to!

References: Movement

#1229 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If I want to charge an enemy unit that is a Large Target with a unit of mine that is in its front arc (for example) but cannot because the enemy unit is already engaged in its front arc, can I instead charge its flank?

RULING

No. Sometimes a charge isn't possible.

References: Movement

#1240 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a single model unit straddles two arcs of an enemy unit it wishes to charge, is it always considered to be in the arc that gives the least advantage?

RULING

No, this is only the case when you cannot determine which arc of an enemy unit a charging unit is within. If it is clear that the majority of a charging unit is within one particular arc, even if that unit consists of only one model, it will charge into that arc.

References: Movement

#1246 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit charges an enemy that is defending a low linear obstacle, can it stop on top of the obstacle?

RULING

No. As stated on page 270, the charging unit moves into base contact with the obstacle.

References: Movement

#1250 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a unit redirects a charge, can it charge a unit that lies beyond its maximum possible charge range?

RULING

No.

References: Movement

#1251 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Whilst running down the foe, is a charging unit considered to be pursuing a fleeing enemy for the purposes of crossing the edge of the battlefield, etc.?

RULING

Yes, a unit that runs down the foe is very much pursuing a fleeing enemy whilst doing so.

References: Movement

#1254 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a unit enters the battle as reinforcements, is there a limit to how far onto the battlefield models can be placed?

RULING

Yes. The unit is considered to have moved onto the battlefield. Therefore, no model can be placed more than twice its Movement characteristic from the edge of the battlefield its unit enters from.

References: Movement

#1259 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Wizard cast a Conveyance spell during a turn in which they charged?

RULING

No.

References: Movement

Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1035 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit of Night Goblins that is engaged in combat still contains any unreleased Fanatics, can they be released whilst the unit is engaged?

RULING

Provided they can be placed within 3" of their concealing unit and not touching the bases of any other models, yes.

References: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1051 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Fanatic moves into contact with a unit that's engaged in combat, does it hit the unit(s) that unit is engaged with as well?

RULING

When a Fanatic moves into contact with another unit, it continues in a straight line until it can be placed back on the battlefield. Any units that line passes through are hit. Units the line does not pass through are not hit.

References: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1097 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How are Victory Points scored for a Night Goblin unit that includes one or more Fanatics once its Fanatic(s) have been released?

RULING

Fanatics are an upgrade for the unit; their cost is included when working out VP for the unit itself. In other words, the death of an individual Fanatic is not worth any VP, but destroying the unit it was concealed within will earn you the VP for the Fanatic as part of the unit's points cost.

References: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1120 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens to a Fanatic that moves into or through the front arc of a unit of Bretonnian Peasant Bowmen equipped with 'defensive stakes'?

RULING

Nothing good. Defensive stakes function very much like linear terrain, therefore a Fanatic that moves into contact with a row of defensive stakes, from any direction, comes to a very sudden stop and is removed from play as a casualty.

References: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1127 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens to a Fanatic that ends its movement within the Command range of one or more models with the Hostile Terrain special rule?

RULING

The Fanatic must make a Dangerous Terrain test. Rather than creating an area of dangerous terrain, Hostile Terrain represents a model laying traps and creating hazards, causing enemy models to make a dangerous terrain test should they end their movement within that area.

References: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1151 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If I upgrade a unit of Boar Boyz to be Big 'Uns, do their War Boars benefit as well?

RULING

Yes.

Note that the Strength characteristic of Big 'Uns is modified whilst they are engaged in combat, and that Impact Hits are made using the model's unmodified Strength characteristic.

References: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1174 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When shooting a Doom Diver catapult, the template can be moved D3" after scattering. Can I use this to move the template so that it hits an enemy character that is within 3" of a unit, a character that could not usually be targeted by shooting?

RULING

Yes. The template must be moved the full distance rolled on the D3 but, if that allows you to position it to hit an enemy character, you may do so. Sneaky Goblin Doom Divers steer their flight in an attempt to hit the best possible target, so this is completely in character.

References: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1187 GW FAQ

QUESTION

All Goblins Fear Elves. If a unit of Elves causes Fear, does this lead them to cause Terror in Goblins?

RULING

No.

References: Orc & Goblin Tribes

#1194 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can the Glowy Green Amulet be used by a character that isn't a Wizard?

RULING

Yes. The Glowy Green Amulet is a talisman, meaning any character that can take magic items can take it. However, if they wish to use it against an enemy spell, they do so instead of a Wizardly dispel attempt being made. This means that you cannot also attempt a Wizardly dispel against a spell you use the Glowy Green Amulet against, even if the Glowy Green Amulet explodes.

References: Orc & Goblin Tribes

Scenarios

#29 Clarification

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Are victory points cumulative if a unit flees and is below 25% of its starting size?

RULING

You take the maximum of points, in this case 50% for a fleeing unit

References: Dead or Fled MPG 19

#138

0 General Rules

QUESTION

When do you need to decide or declare if a unit is scouting?

RULING

You don't need to declare it in advance. Units with the Scout ability can be deployed at any point during the regular deployment phase, up until characters are deployed.

References: Scouts CRB 188, Deployment CRB 285

#241

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can characters with the ambush special rule join a unit with ambush pre-placement?

RULING

Yes they can, use the rules for Characters and Reserves - announce each turn before rolling any dices

References: Reserves CRB 285

#253

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can characters without the ambush special rule join a unit with ambush pre-placement?

RULING

No

References: Reserves CRB 285, Ambushers CRB 166

#323

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Do Characters in units count against the minimum US for scoring units?

RULING

Yes, regardless of their unit type

#352

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can I choose for reserves to enter during any player’s turn?

RULING

No, only on your own turns.

References: Matched Play Guide Scenarios

#387

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can the Battle Standard be "claimed as a trophy" in the same way as any other standard (as described p.200), by killing the BSB in combat or running him down?

RULING

Yes, and the Victory Points obtained are cumulative to the Victory Points granted for slaying the BSB.

References: Trophies of War CRB 286, Standards CRB 152

Shooting

#1007 GW FAQ

QUESTION

A unit cannot Stand & Shoot if the distance between it and the charging unit is less than the Movement characteristic of the charging unit. But if a unit is charged by two (or more) enemy units and only one is too close, can it Stand & Shoot at the other?

RULING

No. If any of the charging units are too close to the charged unit for it to make a Stand & Shoot charge reaction, it cannot Stand & Shoot.

References: Shooting

#1052 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When are line of sight and cover determined for a unit that declares a Stand & Shoot charge reaction?

RULING

When the charge reaction is declared.

References: Shooting

#1085 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a model that chooses to Stand & Shoot (or Fire & Flee) as a charge reaction attempt to cast a Magic Missile or Magical Vortex?

RULING

No. As stated on page 143, models that know such spells can attempt to cast them when chosen during the active player's Shooting phase. Perhaps obviously, this includes Bound spells.

References: Shooting

#1115 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a model use a Breath weapon after marching?

RULING

No. A model cannot shoot during the Shooting phase if it marched during the preceding Movement phase and, although they work differently to most missile weapons, Breath weapons are a type of missile weapon.

References: Shooting

#1132 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Models cannot cast Magic Missiles or Magical Vortexes after marching, but does this include Bound spells?

RULING

Yes.

References: Shooting

#1160 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit that is partially on a hill shoot in two ranks?

RULING

No. To claim the benefits of being on a hill, a unit must be entirely on the hill.

References: Shooting

#1172 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit on a hill draw a line of sight across and shoot over another unit on the same hill?

RULING

A unit that is closer to the top of a hill (i.e., the centre of the hill or the edge of the battlefield) can draw a line of sight across and shoot over one that is closer to the bottom. Units cannot draw a line of sight across or shoot over units that are closer to the top of a hill than they are.

References: Shooting

#1185 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Some chariots are equipped with large scale missile weapons such as bolt throwers. Who shoots such weapons; the crew, the beasts that draw the chariot, the chariot itself, or a character mounted upon the chariot?

RULING

Missile weapons mounted on chariots (or howdahs) are shot by the crew, using their Ballistic Skill.

References: Shooting

Skaven

#1005 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Warp Lightning Cannon fire grapeshot?

RULING

No. Grapeshot can only be fired by a cannon or weapon that fires using the 'Cannon Fire' special rule.

References: Skaven

Skirmishers

#9

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Can Skirmishers change their facing during a move? Can they change direction? How do they charge? And how does forming up work with Skirmishers?

RULING

Normal Movement and Marching Skirmishers may freely change direction and pivot during normal movement and marching.

Charging with Skirmishers During a Charge, they follow the charge criteria, therefore may change direction only once and must follow the shortest path to the closest visible model in the target unit.

The closest model in the charging unit moves first: • A single pivot must be made as early as possible in order to contact the nearest model in the charged unit via the shortest route. • Move straight, with your front facing directly forward, into base contact.

Charging Skirmishers with Skirmishers The first moving model forms the center of the fighting rank upon contact. Other charging models have to form up (see below) in even numbers to the left and the right of that model. Maximum one model may be added in excess to that unevenly to one side. Against skirmishers you maximize only against the first contacted model of the enemy unit; adjust the path of the first charging model if it brings more of your models into base contact with the first contacted model. You do not have to alter your charge path in order to maximize the number of models in the enemy unit's fighting rank. Skirmishers Charging formed units When charging formed units, each model charges individually to form up (see below) to the charge target and form the fighting rank, so they can actively maximize base contact. Therefore, you have to prioritize base contact over the shortest route.

Units in Formed Formations (Open Order, Close Order etc.) charging Skirmishers Any unit charging a unit of Skirmishers must take the shortest route to contact the closest visible model. The Skirmishers then form up (see below).

Forming Up (as charger against the enemy unit, building the fighting rank or if charged) During Forming up, Skirmish models move in an order of their controlling player's choosing. They may move through friendly models and may pivot (once if charging). They form up edge to edge, front corner to front corner against the enemy fighting rank or behind if they have not sufficient movement. No model may move further than their M value, or their M value + the charge roll when charging. All Models unable to fully reach their required position in the ranks are removed as casualties (if the first model contacted is removed, others can still try to form up).

References: Formed Units Charging Skirmishers CRB 186, Directly Towards CRB 92

#131

0 General Rules

QUESTION

How does a unit reform from a ranked formation into Skirmish formation? Do models spread out to do so?

RULING

No models are moved during the reform into skirmish formation - leave all models in the unit in their exact same position and simply inform your opponent that they have reformed into skirmish.

References: Skirmishers CRB 185 – 187 GW FAQ

#244

0 General Rules

QUESTION

How do Skirmishers conduct a flee move or Give Ground? What happens when they flee through units?

RULING

If in Skirmish Formation (not formed up), determine center-to-center, then flee with all models parallel in this direction without pivoting the unit. Give Ground the same way, stopping the whole unit if at least one model encounters an obstacle.

If any model in the skirmish unit moves through another unit, then all models continue moving in the same direction until they are no longer within 1" of an enemy or overlapping a friendly unit, taking peril tests as normal.

If models flee through units, move the whole unit the same distance. If the unit encounters an impassable terrain piece, each model moves as close as possible along that terrain piece and returns then to the original flee path

During Flee or Give Ground, if at least one model moves off the board, the whole unit is destroyed.

References: Skirmishers CRB 184f, GW FAQ

#250

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Multiple Charges into Skirmishers: What happens if you get a different side presented after forming up of the Skirmishers against the first Unit?

RULING

Skirmishers as GW FAQ do not have arcs, just move in the side presented to you after forming up.

References: GW FAQ

#251

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Multiple Charges into Skirmishers: What happens if the formed up side towards your unit is "full" so you cannot make contact with that side?

RULING

Go to the side of that "arc"("flank" - remember, no arcs), but you have to able to get there with only 1 wheel, else you fail the charge

References: GW FAQ

#252

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Multiple Charges into Skirmishers: What happens if you can go straight forward in but also you can maximize if you go into another side of the unit?

RULING

Charge to the side, maximizing has priority, but remember that you are only allowed to do one wheel, sometimes you will be able to do this, while sometimes you have to priorize charging over maximizing - use the principles of charging, priorizing top to bottom.

References: GW FAQ

#338

4-4 Follow Up & Pursuit

QUESTION

A skirmisher unit that has formed up into Close Formation during combat must maintain this formation until it is no longer engaged at the end of the Combat phase. How does reform work while the unit is in this Close Formation (FBIGO, restrain & reform, Catching the Curs)? How does being formed up interact with Fleeing and Panic? Can you still use Chariot Runners when being Formed up?

RULING

Close Formation” is read as a distinct mode within Skirmish Formation: the unit is still a skirmisher, but currently “formed up” (edge-to-edge, ranked). While formed up, the unit behaves like a formed unit for movement purposes: pivoting and rearranging ranks/files are allowed, and it may adopt another keyword formation (e.g., Open Order) if permitted. The unit will also flee exactly like a formed unit. However, it must remain formed up until the end of the Combat phase, and does not re-form up again when pursuing into a new enemy (it keeps the ranks/files it already has).

For Panic, the rules for Skirmishers & Panic speak of being Skirmish Formation and not of Ranks, which the formed up skirmisher formation unit still fulfills. Therefore, it will only cause panic in Skirmisher units if fleeing through and if another skirmisher unit flees through them while being formed up, they will still suffer panic.

You cannot use Chariot Runners to move with a Chariot through formed up Skirmishers.

References: GW FAQ, Formed up Skirmishers, Skirmishers in Combat

#358

0 General Rules

QUESTION

If a unit of skirmishers takes casualties and has no other choice than to remove models in a way that two or more characters that have joined said unit lose coherency with the unit, what happens to the characters?

RULING

Any model out of coherency, including characters, is removed from play as casualty.

References: GW FAQ

Special Rules

#5 Clarification

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Are modifiers to charge rolls part of the charge roll for the purpose of re-rolling? Do these modifiers to the charge roll results count when determining the movement of a failed charge?

RULING

The modifiers are not part of the charge roll and abilities that let you reroll the charge roll cannot be applied for modifiers. However, as a failed charge references the charge roll, it uses the result of the charge roll with modifiers, not precising "without modifiers" for the determination of the failed charge move.

References: Swifstride CRB 178, GW FAQ, Waaagh Banner, Crusader's Zeal, First to the Fray, Daemon of Slaanesh, 'Ere We Go!, Virtue of the Impetuous Knight, Beast Banner

#7

2-1 Movement Phase Declare Charges and Charge Reaction

QUESTION

Does a frenzied unit need to declare a charge if there is a friendly unit in it's way, if the friendly unit could itself declare a charge and move out of the way?

RULING

No, the frenzied unit only has to declare a charge if the blocking unit is declaring a charge but the blocking unit is not obliged to do so

References: Frenzy, Impetuous GW FAQ 1.5.1 9

#16 Clarification

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

If a model makes some sort of special attack, like Slayer Deathblow, Nurgling Attacks or Blood of Hashut, do Special rules of that model that apply to its normal attacks also apply to these attacks?

RULING

Unless the special rules states Weapon Attack (Armour Bane) and the attack is not made by a Weapon, all special rules translate onto these attacks

References: Dwarves Slayers of Legends FoF 17

#53

2-3 Movement Phase Compulsory Moves

QUESTION

Can a Model with the special rule Random Movement use Fly (X) to move over units?

RULING

No, Random Movement is not based on the movement characteristic, hence the unit cannot use the special rule Fly(X). Random Movement Units move in the compulsory movement phase and therefore neither march, charge or manoeuvre.

References: Random Movement CRB 176Fly (X) CRB 170

#57

3-1 Shooting Phase Declare Target

QUESTION

When using Evasive, how does it interact with Targeting, Magic Missiles, Bombardment, Cannon Fire and Line of Sight?

RULING

Evasive can be used after a unit has been targeted by shooting. If the unit evades out of LOS or out of range, the attacks are lost. The following exceptions and special cases apply:

- Bombardment: You Target the unit by placing the template over it. If the unit uses Evasive, the template will not move with the unit, but will be resolved at the initial positon.
- Cannon Fire: If you target the enemy model, and the model moves by using evasive, the model and the target point are still separate entities. As you determine the target point in step 1, choose target point, which is the same as targeting, the point is then fixed on the initial position of the models base edge, similar to Bombardment - "once you have chosen your target point" puts marking the target point and targeting on the exact same step. The shot will always be conducted from the target point.
- Magic Missiles: Use evasive before the casting roll is even made, after the target is announced. The wizard then may chose to not make the casting roll. ("unit may continue with its shooting as declared")

References: Evasive CRB 168

#66 Clarification

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Does hawk-eyed archer allow you to target war machine crew?

RULING

No, as the war machine and crew are actually 1 model, with split stats based on the type of attack. You will always make these attacks vs the war machine profile when doing ranged attacks

References: Wood Elves Hawk Eyed Archer FoF 123

#76

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can the rules Shield of the Lady and Verminous Valour, which both allow a character to ‘retire’ by ‘moving through the ranks’, be used outside of combat? These rules specify they can be used 'at any time', but also directly refer to 'the fighting rank' and 'the combat', and the rule for 'moving through the ranks’.

When must retired characters (from Refusing a Challenge, Too Many Characters, Shield of the Lady or Verminous Valour) "un-retire", a.k.a. return to their original (front rank) position?

What happens when a unit falls below Unit Strength 10 after a Handmaiden retires to the rear rank of that unit?

RULING

These rules directly refer to 'the fighting rank' and 'the combat' which only apply in combat, and involve 'moving through the ranks' which requires the unit to be engaged and the character to return to its original position as soon as it disengages: Unretire when the unit is not engaged in the current combat anymore, provided that that combat does not continue due to a Follow Up or Pursuit move (GW FAQ confirmed that an ongoing challenge continues in that case).

Note that you cannot use it as a reaction on already stated or announced actions. This means while resolving a combat you have to use it at the end of an initiative step, before targets of models' attacks are announced. You can use it outside of resolving the combat at any time, given the unit is engaged in combat.

Note that the Unit Strength 10 condition for shield of the Lady is checked at the moment the Handmaiden retires to the rear rank. If the condition is met at that time, the Lady’s effects remain active until the combat ends, even if the unit later falls below Unit Strength 10.

References: Skaven Verminous ValourBretonnia Shield of the Lady

#77 Clarification

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Some abilities grant bonuses to a characteristic, up to a maximum value. Some grant bonuses with no mention of a maximum value. When used together, how do they interact? How does it interact with Strike Last, Strike First or abilities that set characteristics to a certain value?

RULING

Set the Initiative first to the value (1 in case of Strike Last). Any limitation is applied at the end of characteristic calculation. If there are no limitations on the characteristic from any source, you can go above 10. Note that no characteristic can go below 0 (see pg. 97 Characteristics of Zero). Models with Initiative 0 attack in Initiative order, after all attacks with initiative 1, including stomp attacks.

References: Model Profiles CRB 96 - 97, Tomb Kings My Will Be done RH 126

#78

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can I stack Casket of Souls Covenant of Power?

RULING

No. The rule grants the bonus if you are with a casket. If there is 1 or multiple Caskets doesn't matter

References: Tomb Kings Casket of Souls RH 148

#81 Clarification

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Is there a difference between rules that say you suffer a wound and ones that say you lose a wound?

RULING

Suffering a wound allows armor and ward saves if not specifically ruled otherwise. Losing a wound means the model loses the wound without any saves allowed. Note that you can use the regeneration special rule when a wound is lost (except for Unstable, where regeneration is not allowed).

References: Regeneration GW FAQ 1.5.1 3

#86

0 General Rules

QUESTION

How do multiple instances of Multiple Wounds special rule stack, e.g. Multiple Wounds (D3) and Multiple Wounds (2)?

RULING

It would be D3 +1 as MW (2) is effectively Wounds (+1) Poll 04-2026: Q: Are multiple instances of the Multiple Wounds (X) special rule cumulative? A: No: take the highest. The MW rule is not a value modifier but instead a redefinition of what an unsaved wound does. B: Yes: as it states on page 165 ‚Cumulative Special Rules‘: "the effect of the special rule in some way alters a characteristic, dice roll or any other value". In this case the end result (the effect) of MW (a special rule) alters a characteristic (the wound characteristic). In addition, unlike magic resistance or frenzy, there is no wording or faq that ‚notes otherwise‘. Hence MW(X) + MW(Y) = MW(X+Y).

Poll unclear

References: Multiple Wounds CRB 176Cumulative Effects CRB 165

#88

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Against which models do the various instances of Hatred (X) apply?

RULING

Some instances of Hatred are keyword-based, applying against models identified by a given keyword appearing on their Unit Card or in one of their Special Rules. These are: enemy Characters (Troop Type), enemy Wizards (typically identified in the Magic section of the Unit Card), Undead models (models with either the Nehekharan Undead or Necromantic Undead special rule), Daemonic models (models with the Daemonic special rule), and Daemons of Slaanesh/Tzeentch/Nurgle/Khorne (models with the corresponding Daemon of... special rule).

Other instances are faction-based, applying against all models belonging to a given faction. In several cases, the rules use legacy Warhammer Fantasy Battles faction names as shorthand (or as an unchecked carryover): Orcs & Goblins (Orc & Goblin Tribes), Dwarfs (Dwarfen Mountain Holds), High Elves (High Elf Realms), Empire (Empire of Man), Beasts of Chaos (Beastmen Brayherds).

Units taken as Mercenaries or Allies belong only to their own faction (if any) for the purposes of Hatred. By contrast, if a unit is fielded as part of another faction's Army Composition List (excluding Mercenaries and Allies), it is considered to belong to both its own faction and the host faction for the purposes of Hatred. For example, Black Orcs fielded in a Chorfs army belong to both O&G and Chorfs; a Chaos Giant fielded in a WoC army belongs to both BB and WoC; a Chaos Spawn fielded in a BB army belongs to both WoC and BB.

Note that, unlike Hatred (X), Fear of Elves is a race-based rule. The rule explicitly states that Elves “of any type” cause Fear, making clear that it applies based on a model's race rather than a keyword or faction classification.

References: Hatred CRB 171

#98 Clarification

4-2 Combat Phase Calculate Combat Result

QUESTION

How many wounds are counted for Combat Result/Overkill when models are killed with Killing Blow

RULING

Each attack that inflicts Killing Blow or similar ability inflicts a number of wounds equal to the remaining wounds of the model. Excess wounds with Killing Blow count in challenges as one single wound.

References: Multiple Wound Models CRB 102Killing Blow CRB 172Killing Blow GW FAQ 1.5.1 7

#103 Clarification

0 General Rules

QUESTION

The rule say that Magic Resistance doesn't stack. Does this count only for multiple models or does it include single models?

RULING

Magic Resistance from various sources or multiple items doesn't stack for single models unless it is explicitly stated (like Obsidian Lodestone stacks with itself)

References: Magic Resistance CRB 173Obsidian Lodestone CRB 341

#104 Clarification

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Do the modifiers for several Mortis Engine stack? How often do you roll on the Miscast table when you are in the Commanding Range of 2 Mortis Engines?

RULING

Given that the rules say you get the bonus if you are in range of "this model" the modifiers do stack for several Mortis Engines. In case ogf a Miscast an absolute number of rolls is given. So you roll twice no matter how many Mortis Engines are in range.

References: Vampire Counts Mortis Engine 17, Accursed ReliquaryBlasphemous Tome

#105

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

How does the 'Resurrecting the Fallen' ability work with units in Skirmish formation?

RULING

Just as GW FAQ states, you have to add th emodels in coherency. Since all skirmishers are resurrected at the same time, each model added has to be in coherency with another model of the unit that was already present before the resurrection.

References: Vampire Counts Invocation of Nehek 5, Tomb Kings Arise! RH 128, Resurrecting the Fallen RH 154, Resurrecting the Fallen Vampire Counts 28

#115

2-1 Movement Phase Declare Charges and Charge Reaction

QUESTION

When a unit that causes Terror declares a charge, when is the Leadership test taken and how is a failed test resolved? How does this interact with multiple charges?

RULING

When a unit that causes Terror declares a charge, the target must immediately take a Leadership test, before any further charges are declared. If the test is failed, the unit must declare Flee as its charge reaction. The flee move is resolved as normal, together with the other charge reactions. In the case of multiple charges, as the unit has declared Flee, it flees from the charging unit with the highest Unit Strength, following the normal rules for multiple charges. Note that Terror tests are not limited to one, so if multiple units with Terror charge, you have to pass multiple tests.

References: Terror CRB 179, Charge Reactions Flee CRB 120

#119

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Can Units adopt Special Rules or Formations that would prevent characters from joining them, while joined by such a character? (for example: grail pilgrims becoming unbreakable while joined by a non-unbreakable character or units in open order reforming to skirmishers while joined by a character of a different sub-type or troop type).

RULING

The character must first leave the unit, before the unit may adapt skirmish formation. If the character already joined the unit prior to the special rule coming into effect, the whole unit including the character gets to use the special rule.

References: Characters & Units CRB 207

#124

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

When do you place your additional wood from "Woodland Ambush" rule.

RULING

After deciding the sides, but before deploying any unit.

References: Wood Elves Woodland Ambush FOF 145

#130

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

How do you reform a unit from Skirmish Formation to Close or Open Order?

RULING

If you reform from skirmishing formation, maintain the centre of the unit as good as possible and rank all models up around that point. You may freely chose the facing of the unit. Place command group models accordingly. Every model may move up to twice its movement characteristic as stated under maneuvers. Remove any skirmishers as casualties that are not able to rank up.

References: Skirmishers CRB 185 – 187Maneuvers CRB 124Reform CRB 125GW FAQ

#133 Clarification

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can a model with the Grail Vow benefit from it's Ward save when facing another Bretonnian Army?

RULING

Yes, the army cannot pray to receive the Blessing. Models with the Grail Vow already have the Blessing before the Battle.

References: Bretonnia Blessings of the Lady FOF 107, Bretonnia Grail Vow FOF 108

#134

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

What is considered the front and rear corner of a unit in Lance Formation for the purpose of determining if it can pass through other units?

RULING

For this purpose, the front edge of the second rank and the model in the first rank cannot pass through units. The rest of the unit can wheel through other units as the models would take a direct route as described in the GW FAQ.

References: Bretonnia The Lance Formation FOF 110 - 111

#136

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Who can allocate attacks to a single model in a Lance Formation?

RULING

Models that are physically in base contact with a character or champion may allocate their attacks to that model (usually the tip of the Lance and the models it physically makes contact with). Models that are not physically in base contact with the Lance are considered to be in base contact with the Lance unit, and vice versa, but not with any singular model in particular.

References: Bretonnia The Lance Formation FOF 110 - 111

#137

2-2 Movement Phase Compulsory Moves

QUESTION

A unit with random movement arrives as reinforcements or with the ambushers special rule during the compulsory moves sub-phase. Can this unit move during this sub-phase ?

RULING

Yes, it did not move yet using its random movement rule. Please note that if the model is able to make contact with an enemy unit it may do so and counts as having charged.

References: Reinforcements CRB 134, Accidental Contact CRB 131, Pursuit off the Battlefield CRB 157, Random Movement CRB 176

#139

0 General Rules

QUESTION

The Veteran rule grants a reroll for Leadership Tests. Can you also reroll tests made 'against the unit's Leadership characteristic' (e.g. Panic Tests)?

RULING

Yes

References: Leadership Tests CRB 97Veterans CRB 180

#149

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Do other special rules also applies to units that are not yet on the battlefield (or that have left the battlefield for a turn) ? For instance, do they have to roll for Stupidity at the Start of turn sub-phase ? Can they roll for Gaze of the Gods at the Command sub-phase?

RULING

Units don't count as long as they are not on the battlefield, they don't get to use their special rules.

#163

4-4 Follow Up & Pursuit

QUESTION

What happens when a unit with Random Movement makes a Pursuit, Overrun, Flee, Fall Back in Good Order, or conducts similar movements?

RULING

Only use Random Movement during the Compulsory Movement phase or any movement based on the unit's Movement characteristic. For all other movement types (e.g., FBIGO, fleeing, pursuing etc.), follow the rules for the relevant move type as stated in the rulebook, including distance rolls.

References: Random Movement CRB 176, GW FAQ

#164

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

What are the size restrictions for player-created terrain, such as the forest from Woodland Ambush or the Herdstone? Can these be asymmetrical, hollow, or other unusual shapes?

RULING

For player-created forests, they must be between 3" at their narrowest and 9" at their widest point, which limits most unusual shapes. The Herdstone must be no more than 6" at its widest point, but has no minimum size or limits on unusual shapes. However, while there is no specific limitation in the rules, it is recommend that players check with the TO of their event before entering a tournament with a terrain piece that has a very unusual shape (especially if the shape is designed to provide a specific competitive advantage, such as a hollow herdstone) as it is common for TOs to disallow the use of these irregular designs.

References: Woodland Ambush FOF 145

#173

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

For monster handlers, is the D6 roll to check whether a wound removes a handler or makes the monster lose a wound only during combat, or for any unsaved wounds?

RULING

The roll occurs for any unsaved wounds, since the last phrase of the paragraph is also not related only to combat. The "in combat" only applies to the first phrase.

References: Monster Handlers CRB 173

#185

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can a Salamander Pack or a similar unit that is both War beasts and Regular infantry, benefit from Inspiring Presence ?

RULING

No, the War Beast Troop Type gives the unit the undisciplined special rule

References: Lizardmen, Beastmen Primal Wardogs

#186

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

Can units with the special rule dragged along be drawn by units with the special rule Fly (X)?

RULING

Yes, use the movement distance in the brackets of Fly(X) but move the model dragged along on the ground - not using fly movement.

References: Dragged Along CRB 167, Fly (X) CRB 169

#188

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Motley Crew: When do you determine which casualties are removed in combat / what the majority of models is?

RULING

Check at the beginning of each initiative step when attacks are made. Check the majority of models of both fighting ranks, first and second, for the majority of models and use their armour save. Then for all unsaved wounds, remove casualties among those which have a majority. Apply the principles of casualty removal (first rank eligible to fight first, then second, then support attacks, then stepping forward) only among the models who have a majority. This can lead to the case that models from the second fighting rank are removed before models in the first fighting rank. Models that do not belong the the majority of the fighting rank are only removed after all models of the unit that do belong to the majority of the fighting rank for each initiative step. Note that a champion that choses a wholly different weapon counts as a separate pool. In case of a tie, the controlling player decides which armour save to use and which models to remove (you have to remove the models of which you use the armour save).

References: Motley Crew CRB 174

#190

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can a Champion that is not on the table (because he is in Ambush, or hold back as Reserves) Challenge or accept the Challenge of a Warrior Duel ?

RULING

Yes, nothing in the wording of the rule implies that the Champion's Unit of the Marauder or their opponent have to be actually on the battlefield to fight in the Warrior Duel.

References: Warriors of Chaos Warrior Duel

#199

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

Can a Skink character join a Salamander Pack, a skirmisher unit which has both Regular infantry and War beast troop sub-types ?

RULING

No, since skink characters do not have both regular infantry and the war beast troop type.

References: Characters joining Skirmishers CRB 185

#204

2-3 Movement Phase Compulsory Moves

QUESTION

Can a unit with random movement move into contact with a unit that was not "at least partly in its front arc" as long as it fulfills all criteria for charging (single wheel etc.) stated on 126 (see GW FAQ)? For example, an enemy unit that is behind the unit with random movement but reachable with a single wheel?

RULING

Yes, you don't need LoS or the enemy unit to be in your front arc since you do not declare the charge. As long as you fulfill the charge criteria (shortest route, only one wheel etc.), that is a perfectly acceptable "move into contact".

References: Random Movement CRB 176

#205

2-1 Movement Phase Declare Charges and Charge Reaction

QUESTION

Can you use counter charge against a redirected charge?

RULING

No, only hold or flee are possible against a redirected charge.

References: Redirecting a Charge CRB 129

#211 Clarification

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Some Options (Equipment) confer Special Rules to Characters. Do Mounts also benefit from these special rules if they affect the Armour Save? Can this special rule be used to overcome a max. armour save?

RULING

Yes, these special rules affect also the mount. No, the max. Armour Save (3+) for Monsters, Chariots and War Machines is unaffected by this and will cap the Armour Save.

References: Arcane Journal High Elves Lions Cloak, Dark Elves Sea Dragon Cloak

#212

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can you cast assailment spells during a warriors duel ("like in a challenge")? Assailment spells are cast in every "combat phase", the warriors duel only states that there "rounds of combat"

RULING

Yes, rounds of combat are conducted in the combat phase, so its possible

References: Warriors of Chaos Warrior Duel

#215

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Goad Beast: During the Command sub-phase of their turn, this character may goad a single friendly model whose troop type is ‘monster’ and that is within their Command range (including their own mount). Until the end of this turn, that model gains a +D3 modifier to its Attacks characteristic (to a maximum of 10). Does this also affect the rider?

RULING

No, only the mount, see 'including their own mount' - see Split Profile (monster mount) - The character and mount each use their own Weapon Skill, Ballistic Skill, Strength, Initiative and Attacks characteristics,

References: Dark Elves

#218

3-2 Shooting Phase Roll to Hit

QUESTION

When calculating how many models can shoot using Volley Fire, when do you round?

RULING

You round after calculating the models in each rank. Example: For a unit that is 5 models wide and 5 ranks deep on level ground, 5 from the first rank, 3 each from the second (5/2=2.5, rounded to 3), third, fourth, and fifth ranks can shoot. In total, 17 models will shoot.

References: Volley Fire CRB 180

#221

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

Can a unit with Random movement reform when restraining from pursuing or following up, when rallying (including fall back in good order) or after destroying a fleeing enemy unit ?

RULING

Yes, the restriction on not being able to perform manoeuvres only applies when moving with their Random Movement characteristic.

References: GW FAQ, Random Movement CRB 176

#222

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

What is happening when a model with random movement is put in base contact with a fleeing unit ? Does the unit flees again or is it destroyed ?

RULING

The unit is destroyed - no charge reaction is given when being contacted by a unit with random movement.

References: GW FAQ, Random Movement CRB 176

#232

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

How many wailing dirges does a Mortis engine have?

RULING

You only do one wailing dirge attack for the whole mortis engine.

References: Vampire Counts

#242

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Do frenzied (or impetuous) units always have to use Swiftstride or Fly when charging

RULING

Yes, see GW FAQ they always will use special rules that benefit their charge.

References: GW FAQ

#248

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

If a unit with the Fly (X) special rule declares and makes a charge, when do you have to declare which Movement characteristic (Fly or normal) the unit will use?

RULING

Declare which movement will be used as the unit declares the charge

References: GW FAQ

#254

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Can you drill a unit that is part of multiple units charging an unit if the unit with drilled is blocked on both sides by units that charge along of that unit?

RULING

No, Drilled takes place before the charge move and the units are considered to move simultaneously. Would the units charge different targets, the active player could first move the blocking units away and drill then. With multiple units charging the same target, this is not possible.

References: Drilled CRB 167, Multiple Charging Units CRB 130

#256

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

Can a unit that is charging make use of the Drilled special rule in a way that causes accidental contact during a charge or that results in a charge against multiple targets?

RULING

No, unless the unit is in marching column and the minimum widt requested to leave the marching column already causes accidental / a multiple target charge. In that case the unit is allowed to Redress the ranks to be able to charge and conduct a multiple charge against other targets, but only against those needed to actually conduct the charge.

References: Multiple Charge Targets CRB 130, Accidental Contact During a Charge CRB 131

#266

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Does a champion count for the bretonnia exiles blessing if slain in a challenge - or can a champion even get a blessing of the lady if he kills a character or champion in a challenge?

RULING

No, only non-champion characters are counting for this and a champion cannot get the blessing separately from the unit

#269

2 Movement Phase

QUESTION

Do models with the fly (x) rule suffer a -1 movement penalty and have to use the lowest of 2d6 when charging while starting their movement in terrain.

RULING

Yes, models with fly (x) always begin their movement on the ground, and any unit that start their movement in terrain suffers its effects.

References: Fly (X) CRB 169

#270

2-2 Movement Phase Charge Moves

QUESTION

With the new GW FAQ about taking wheeling into account for allowing charges, can you declare charges with Swiftstride if the opponent is within M+9 but with wheel M+12?

RULING

The opponent unit has to be both within M+9 maximum charge range and it has to be possible to conduct the charge with M+9 including the wheels.

References: GW FAQ, Swiftstride CRB 178

#274

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

If Galrauch fails a leadership test, when does the condition end?

RULING

Until the start of his next turn, since he has to test again

References: Warriors of Chaos

#275

2-1 Movement Phase Declare Charges and Charge Reaction

QUESTION

Should all effects that impact stand and shoot apply to all rules that utilize it as a function such as fire and flee?

RULING

Yes, errata all rules that impact stand and shoot to apply to any rule that uses it as part of its functions (Banner of Chalons, Quick Shot)

References: Stand & Shoot CRB 120, Fire & Flee CRB 169

#280

3-3 Shooting Phase Roll to Wound & Make Armour Saves

QUESTION

What happens when a model with a shooting attack that wounds against its target's initiative characteristic targets a war machine (or chariot)?

RULING

Use the initiative value elsewhere on the model (the crew)

References: Split Profile CRB 97, Split Profile Warmachines CRB 197

#282

2-1 Movement Phase Declare Charges and Charge Reaction

QUESTION

Can you still Counter Charge on turn 1 after a Vanguard move?

RULING

Yes. The new ruling states that you cannot declare a charge during your first turn. Counter Charge would be in the opponent's first turn

References: GW FAQ

#284

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Spider Banner: Can the unit wound automatically?

RULING

No they can't, they just get Poison on natural 5+ instead of 6 if they already had poison before.

References: Orcs and Goblins

#290

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Do Parry (from Infantry) and Parry (Guardians of Talsyn) stack?

RULING

Yes, but note that the normal Parry will only be granted if fighting with a hand weapon, not with an Asrai Spear

References: GW FAQ

#291

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

How do the Arrows of Isha and the Seafarer Bow interact?

RULING

You take the best of the two profiles of Bow. This effectively gives Bow of the Seafarer with Arrows of Isha the profile; AP-3 AB(1)."

References: Arcane Journal High Elves

#293

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Does the change in Regeneration mean that i can use a Regeneration save for any case a model loses a wound, even if just losing a wound is stated? E.g. can you attempt a Regeneration save against Peril Tests, Deamonic Instability, Dangerous Terrain and similar cases?

RULING

Yes, as long that it is not mentioned that regeneration saves are not permitted against these attacks. Please note that due to the old wording of regeneration, Killing Blow, Monster Slayer and similar wordings do NOT allow regeneration saves to be made against the wounds lost with these special rules.

References: GW FAQ

#295

4-2 Combat Phase Calculate Combat Result

QUESTION

How would situations resolved where a character without the First Charge rule joins a unit that has it and vice versa?

RULING

As long as one model with the rule First Charge is performing its first charge of the game within a unit, the special rule is used and counts as being used for all models that participated in that charge and have the First Charge special rule in that unit

References: First Charge CRB 169

#297

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Do i have to maximize with a lance charging another unit?

RULING

No, since the lance automatically is in base contact, you don't have to maximize at all - just charge the closest way in.

References: Lance Formation Bretonnia

#299

2-4 Movement Phase Remaining Moves

QUESTION

Can you do a second bombing run with the Sky Lantern or Gyrocopter or do a second Wake of Fire Attack with the Flamespyre Phoenix and similar attacks which are triggered just by moving close or over the opponent when moving with Arcane Urgency or the Rune of Haste and Urgency?

RULING

Yes, given the ability does not have a restriction regarding the number (once per remaining move phase or similar) which it can be used per turn or in total.

#300

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can a Dwarf with a weapon that has Weapon runes inscribed on it use Parry?

RULING

As long as the weapon is a hand weapon.

References: GW FAQ

#305

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can you take a virtue of the duty or ideal even if that means that your general has not the highest Ld in your army?

RULING

Yes, only the BSB is mentioned in GWs FAQ on the highest leadership. This also means in your army you can include mercenaries or other characters that are not able to be the general with a higher leadership than your general.

References: Bretonnia, GW FAQ

#311

0 General Rules

QUESTION

How do abilities like Gnashing Maws (gigantic spawn of chaos) interact with regeneration? What about effects that trigger when a model loses its last wound, such as Timmm-berr!, Grail Pendant or Explosive Demise (warpfire dragon)?

RULING

Regeneration is no longer a save, so a wound from Gnashing Maws counts as an unsaved wound regardless of whether regeneration is successful. Effects that require a model to lose its last wound will only trigger if the model actually loses its last wound after any regeneration saves attempted.

References: GW FAQ

#312

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can an engineer in combat use a pigeon bomb?

RULING

No because this is "instead of shooting normally", so the engineer needs to be able to shoot

References: Pigeon Bombs Forces of Fantasy 77

#314

4-4 Follow Up & Pursuit

QUESTION

Given the FAQ for Open Orders Quick Turn - does this apply to Lumbering aswell?

RULING

Only Quick Turn is mentioned, Lumbering can still be used outside of sequence

References: Lumbering CRB 195, GW FAQ

#318

4-3 Combat Phase Break Test

QUESTION

Stupidity: What happens if a stupid unit does fbigo or rallies, can it reform upon a rally? What happens if the unit gives ground?

RULING

The unit does not give ground and cannot reform when rallying, changing face or use similar abilities (drilled, lumbering etc.). You cannot you use infernal gateway or travel mystical pathway on these units, a move is a move (except obligatory moves, which can be done)

References: GW FAQ, Stupidity CRB 178

#324

0 General Rules

QUESTION

How is Regeneration applied for a model that suffers an unsaved wound with the Multiple Wounds (X) special rule, if the model has less than X Wounds remaining?

RULING

An unsaved wound with the Multiple Wounds (X) special rule causes the target to lose X Wounds (instead of 1), lost simultaneously. If the model has fewer than X Wounds remaining, it loses all its remaining Wounds, and excess wounds have no further effect (no spillover), but will count for Overkill in a Challenge. The model then attempts to Regenerate the lost Wounds.

If a troll with 3W left suffers an unsaved wound with Multiple Wounds (5), it loses its 3 remaining Wounds, then attempts to regenerate the 3 lost Wounds. The 2 potential wounds in excess have no effect. If a skeleton suffers an unsaved wound from a cannonball with MW (D3+1), it loses it single Wound, then attempts to regenerate it. The other potential wounds in excess have no effect.

References: GW FAQ

#325

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Since Killing Blow / Monster Slayer only states "roll a 6 on a wound roll" and Ethereal states "cannot be wounded" - does Killing Blow / Monster Slayer with non-magical attacks actually work against Ethereal?

RULING

No! Killing Blow / Monster Slayer states that there has to be an "unsaved wound" for it to work - but Ethereal units can only be wounded by magical attacks.

References: Ethereal CRB 167, Killing Blow CRB 172, Monster Slayer CRB 173

#328

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

How is the -1 to hit from Fear applied in multi-unit combats if the Leadership test is failed?

RULING

The -1 is applied to the unit that fails the test against all units that cause fear and have a higher US then the unit that failed the test in this combat.

References: Fear CRB 168

#329

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

If a Skaven Character uses his verminous valour rule, does he retire, thus any special rules he contributes to the unit are lost and he cannot enter the fighting rank again in subsequent phases of combat?

RULING

Yes. Verminous valour is clear: the character retires. Follow the normal rules for characters retiring, with the exception that the character will continue to confer their leadership to the unit. However, the character has not refused a challenge, and is therefore able to move through the ranks agin in future round of combat.

References: Skaven

#331

2-1 Movement Phase Declare Charges and Charge Reaction

QUESTION

When can you declare a counter charge? Can you use Counter Charge if you are not able to conduct the pivot or reach the opponent?

RULING

Counter Charge is a charge reaction which does not underly the requirements for declaring a charge. All limits of declaring Counter Charge are specificed in GW FAQ. You can declare a counter charge outside of line of sight and without having the ability to reach your opponent. If you hit an opponent unit with the counter charge move after the pivot, you count as doing accidental contact. If you cannot fully pivot, you will not move at all and if you cannot move after the pivot, you will also not move, but you still count as charging.

References: GW FAQ

#333

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

In the notes of the Iron Hail Gun it specifies the following, "Notes: A model armed with an iron hail gun suffers no negative modifiers for firing at long range, for using the Multiple Shots (D3) special rule, or whilst making a Stand & Shoot charge reaction." Does this effect only apply to the use of the Iron Hail Gun, or the model as a whole?

RULING

Just the iron hail gun, as the note is part of the weapon's rules, it only applies to the weapon.

References: Grand Cathay

#334

0 General Rules

QUESTION

If you lost frenzy, can you regain it by another source?

RULING

Yes you can. You can even re-gain frenzy by the same source, like Blood Rage. Note that if a BSB with a Banner or a character with an source that grants Frenzy (and does not state it can be regained or never lost) loses frenzy and joins a new unit, that unit won't be frenzied.

References: Frenzy CRB 170, GW FAQ

#339

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Do Ethereal Units have to make Peril tests when fleeing through another unit?

RULING

Yes, while they cannot be wounded by magical attacks, Peril Tests cause a unit to lose a wound, not to suffer a wound, so units with the Ethereal special rule have to do peril tests just as other units do.

References: Ethereal CRB 167

#343

0 General Rules

QUESTION

If a unit has to test for Restrain or Impetuous and wants to use the Inspiring Presence of a General,which is not inside the unit but has a modified leadership from warband, can the unit use the warband modifier on that generals modified leadership for this test?

RULING

Yes. The unit uses the modified leadership of the general via Inspiring Presence and does not use the Warband Modifier - the General uses it. The GW FAQ notes that only "a Warband" and thus the unit itself cannot use it.

References: Warband CRB 180, GW FAQ

#345

0 General Rules

QUESTION

When a Warband unit makes a leadership test and uses the Inspiring Presence of a warband general (that is not in the unit). How are the multiple warband bonuses applied to this leadership test? Note that this question only adresses the warband modifier and refers to the wording of the Warband special rule.

RULING

Only the warband modifier of the Generals unit (if he is in a warband unit) is used. If the general is not in a warband unit, then no warband modifier can be claimed.

References: Warband CRB 180, GW FAQ

#346

0 General Rules

QUESTION

A unit affected by certain spells (Earthen Ramparts, Miasmic Mirage), formation (marching column) or that has rallied cannot charge or make a charge moves. How does this interact with Random Movers contacting enemies, Counter Charge or Pursuit Into a Fresh Enemy?

RULING

Since all these count as charging, and therefore as charge moves for special rules like Frenzy or Furious Charge and Impact Hits, you cannot conduct these when under such effects.

References: GW FAQ

#348

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Do fanatics now die when moving through a unit that is entrenched or under the effect of Earthen Ramparts?

RULING

If the unit is under the effect of Earthen Ramparts but wasn’t charged, they hit the unit since earthen ramparts specifies it only works if charged. Against entrenched or earthen ramparts when charged, the fanatics hit the obstacle and die.

References: Orcs and Goblins, GW FAQ

#353

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Do modifiers to the To Hit roll apply when using the Seal of Parravon?

RULING

Yes. The Seal of Parravon refers to a roll of 3 on the To Hit table before modifiers (i.e., the result after consulting the table, not the natural dice roll). Modifiers are applied as normal.

References: Bretonnia

#355

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

If Chalice of Dark Rain is active, can a casket of souls use a magical missile? Are wailing dirges affected by it?

RULING

Only the range of missile weapons is halved´, so the range of Magic Missiles, Wailing Dirge, Breath Weapons and similar rules are not affected (Sky Lantern Bombs), but war machines cannot shoot at all. Since the casket's magic missile is a shooting attack, it cannot be used in such a turn.

References: Beastmen Brayherds

#357

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can Sappers use their ability "Dig in!" in every command phase or only in their own?

RULING

The wording of the special rule "Dig in!" has priority over the general rules for command abilities, thus the special rule can be used in every command phase.

References: Dwarf Mountain Holds

#363 Clarification

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Clarification of the Grail Reliquae.

RULING

The Grail Reliquae is a single model. It might have the stats of 6 Pilgrims but it's still just a single Heavy Infantry model, which has a Unit Strength of 1. No matter how many wounds it suffers it still has 6 attacks. It is not in Marching Column if it's the only model remaining as single models cannot be in Marching Column. Attacks cannot be directed against the Grail Reliquae - all hits will be assigned to the unit. If a template hits the Grail Reliquae, it results in a normal hit assigned to the unit - note that "risking being hit" for the Grail Reliquae works the same way as for any other model with that base size.

References: Bretonnia

#366

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Can stomp attacks in a challenge be also directed towards the unit?

RULING

No

References: GW FAQ, Stomp Attacks CRB 177

#372

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Does the "Unity and Harmony" rule affect Cathay units joined by Mercenary characters?

RULING

No, Jade Warriors & Jade Lancers may only reroll To-Hit rolls of 1 if they are within 3 inches of a mercenary unit. Mercenary characters joined to non-mercenary units do not count.

References: Grand Cathay

#373

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can a unit that was drawn from another army list benefit from special rules that mention "friendly units", for example, a Chaos Spawn in a Beastmen Brayherd Army benefit from a Herdstone?

RULING

Yes, as it has been picked as part of a Beastmen Brayherds army, although it originates from the Warriors of Chaos rules. This applies for all similar unit entries, which are taken as part of the army list (not as mercenaries or allies except for allied armies of infamies in their corresponding grand army).

References: Beastmen Brayherds

#378

2-3 Movement Phase Compulsory Moves

QUESTION

Is a unit with Random Movement affected by modifiers applying to their Movement characteristic, such as terrain or spells?

RULING

Yes. Although models with the Random Movement special rule "do not have a normal Movement characteristic", the result of their dice roll is taken as their Movement characteristic and is affected by modifiers.

References: Random Movement CRB 176

#381

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Can you choose when to use the Opal Amulet or are you forced to use it against the first wound?

RULING

The item gives the bearer a ward save when used, but the player chooses when to activate single use items. Therefore, the Amulet does not have to be used exclusively against the first wound.

References: High Elves, Single Use Magic Items CRB 337

#383

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

According to GW's FAQ, the Griffon Standard allows its unit to claim a higher rank bonus than normal for its unit type. How exactly does this work?

RULING

The unit can claim their rank bonus up to the normal maximum for their unit type, but gets +2 instead of +1 for each of these ranks. Infantry with horde have a max of +6 (normally +3), whereas cavalry have a max of +2 (normally +1).

References: Empire

#393

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Q: The 1.5 errata states that "Any model that is within a fighting rank and within a number of inches equal to its Movement of the enemy unit can fight." The Random Movement special rule states that "Models with this special rule do not have a normal Movement characteristic. Instead, a dice roll is given (2D6, for example). When a model with this special rule moves, roll the dice to determine its maximum movement." How should this interaction be played?

RULING

A) Because the unit does not have a normal movement characteristic when not actively moving, treat the movement value during combat as M (-). This means that models with Random Movement can only make attacks when in base contact with an enemy model. B) Those units still have a Movement characteristic that deviates from the norm. When a unit with Random Movement has models in a fighting rank but not in base-to-base contact with an enemy models, roll their Random Movement dice when their combat is chosen during step 1.1 of the Combat phase. Use the number rolled as the unit's Movement for this combat phase as the unit's Movement characteristic when determining which models outside of base-to-base can attack. If the unit with Random Movement fights in a 2nd combat during the same combat phase, when that new combat is chosen the unit with Random Movement will roll again to determine this range.

#395

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Hatred applies during the first round of combat. If a unit that's already in combat is charged by a new unit, does that count as a new combat for the purpose of Hatred?

RULING

Only for the charging unit in this example. The first round of combat is relative to each unit, and for Hatred to be used it must be the first round that the unit with Hatred is engaged in that combat.

References: Hatred CRB 171

#398

3 Shooting Phase

QUESTION

Are baggage trains considered impassable terrain for the purposes of the crunch rule?

RULING

No. Baggage trains are not impassible terrain for shooting purposes, including the Crunch rule for cannon fire. They are treated as impassible only for the purpose of moving and positioning units.

References: GW FAQ, Cannon Fire Crunch CRB 227

#402

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

The Sepulchral Animus rules allows a modifier with the following wording: "Once per turn, before making a casting roll, any liche priest within a Mortuary Cult army..." Does that mean the ability can be used once per Priest or only once per army?

RULING

Once per Priest. The use of "any Liche Priest" indicates that there is no limit on the number of Liche Priests using the ability, as it relates to a unit entry, and not models.

#403

0 General Rules

QUESTION

Some special rules use the wording majority of the models (Warband, Immune to Psychology, Frenzy, Run with the Pack as examples). How do these special rules work when there is no majority, and the unit is split half?

RULING

Unlike Motley Crew, all these rules are optional or buffs to existing rules. For Motley Crew, the rules stop working on a draw, but these rules are full functional. Thus, you need to have more than 50% of the models qualifying for the use of the rule to achieve a majority and make the rule work.

#405

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

An ogre loader for a Cathay cannon "joins the crew." What exactly does this mean? How do the gunpowder bombs work?

RULING

The ogre loader is considered part of the crew, and thus cannot be hit by enemy shooting (which all goes against the war machine itself). It confers its leadership to the War Machine, aswell as his special rules. The Ogre Loader is not placed on the table as crew, and will just function as other crew members of War Machines. In combat, the opponent has to chose wether to attack the Ogre Loader or the Crew as they form two different wound pools with different toughness. For malfunctions, the controlling player can chose which pools loses a wound. Only if both are reduced to 0 wounds, the war machine is destroyed.

When the crew makes ranged attacks using gunpowder bombs, make 4 attacks: one for the ogre, and one for each crew member

References: Enough for Everyone Armies of Grand Cathay 41, GW FAQ

#409

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Are Fanatics units?

RULING

Yes, a fanatic is a unit (except for all cases that are explained and listed under their unit entry) as it has a model profile, including characteristics, special rules, equipment etc. This means they work as any other unit, with the following exceptions:

- cannot be charged or have attacks directed against them (with the exception of enemy shooting attacks, against which they count as lone characters) and cannot be targeted by any spells (with the exception of enemy magic missiles), not even by their owner.
- does not engage with other units, but follows the rules for fanatic movement when hitting them.
- do not give away victory points when dying.
- their special rule which allows units to move through them forces units to charge through fanatics towards their charge target. Note that fanatics being units will force the following interactions:
- They count as unit for the 1" check of give ground, which is not being disabled by the Fanatic Movement rule.
- Fanatics can hit each other (see the COMFAQ entry for units destroyed while moving) and can never leave the board.
- They provide cover and will cause ambushers and units returning from offside the battlefield to keep distance to them.
- They will cause peril tests when units flee through them in addition to the Fanatic Ball & Chain rule.
- They will cause panic in units and will potentially cause units to flee from them if the fanatic is the closest enemy unit.
- Score domination.

References: Ravening Hordes Forces of Evil 26 Fanatics

#410

3-2 Shooting Phase Roll to Hit

QUESTION

How is cover determined?

RULING

Cover is a measure of how obscured LoS is. How much of the "other model or unit" is visible or obscured is determined considering the definition of LoS, including rules that define when models do or don't block Line of Sight (Large Target, Insignificant, Vantage Point). This means, among others, that non-Large models do not provide cover if the shooting or target unit is a Large Target, that models not on a Vantage Point (Hill) do not provide cover if the shooting or target unit is entirely on a Vantage Point (Hill), and that Insignificant models never provide cover. Remember that Large Targets never benefit from cover. Note that for terrain categories that do not have a specific rule for Line of Sight (e.g. buildings, linear obstacles, ruins, battlefield decoration…), Line of Sight has to be determined by checking the actual "true" Line of Sight from the model, if not stated otherwise by the tournament organizer.

References: Large Target, Cover

#412

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

The rule for Transformation of the Dragon states that the new form cannot be placed within 1" of friendly models, within 3" and within 6" of its previous form. The new FAQ states that when the Dragon is in base-to-base contact with enemy models and transforms, it must remain in b2b. As it's impossible to satisfy all of these conditions, how should the rule be played? What happens if there is no room for the new model to be in b2b with the enemy unit?

RULING

When a Cathayan Dragon is in combat, their transformation rule ignores the requirements to be further than 1" from friendly models or 3" from enemy models and their base is allowed to overlap their previous form. If there is no room to place the new model in b2b with the enemy unit due to allied models occupying their full front arc, simply nudge those friendly units aside by the minimum distance necessary to fit the Dragon's new form. However, if there is no space to fit the new Dragon model due to enemy units (even ignoring the 1" rule) or allied units not engaged in the combat, the dragon cannot transform.

References: Miao Ying

The Psychology of War

#1039 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Are units required to make Panic tests due to the actions of friendly models? For example, if a Wizard miscasts and rolls a 2-4 on the Miscast table, causing a Dimensional Cascade and inflicting sufficient casualties on a friendly unit to cause it to Panic, must that unit make a Panic test?

RULING

Yes (that example sounds to us like something that really would cause panic amongst the ranks!).

References: The Psychology of War p160

#1063 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Units must make a Panic test when a nearby friendly unit with a Unit Strength of 5 or more is destroyed. When is Unit Strength counted – from the start of the turn, the start of the phase, or the point at which the unit is destroyed?

RULING

From the start of the phase during which the unit was destroyed. For example, if a friendly unit with a Unit Strength of 10 is destroyed by enemy shooting during a single Shooting phase, it causes panic in nearby friendly units. Players are not expected to remember the Unit Strength of every unit from turn to turn or phase to phase, but should keep track of Unit Strength during each phase.

References: The Psychology of War p160

Tomb Kings of Khemri

#1017 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When raising dead, can they be raised within an inch of an enemy model?

RULING

Unless the unit is engaged in combat, no.

References: Tomb Kings of Khemri

#1044 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Royal Herald take hits on behalf of a Monarch that is engaged in a challenge?

RULING

No.

References: Tomb Kings of Khemri

#1078 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Are the effects of ‘Eternal Taskmaster’ cumulative?

RULING

No.

References: Tomb Kings of Khemri

#1100 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Necrosphinx make more than one attack each turn with its Decapitating strike?

RULING

No. The decapitating strike profile must be used as noted – to make one additional attack.

References: Tomb Kings of Khemri

#1125 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Are the effects of the Casket of Souls' Bound spell 'Light of Protection' cumulative?

RULING

No.

References: Tomb Kings of Khemri

#1144 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Casket of Souls move at the end of the Shooting phase of its turn using the Reserve Move special rule (should it have it)?

RULING

No.

References: Tomb Kings of Khemri

#1164 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Is it possible to resurrect models in a unit of Skirmishers?

RULING

Yes, simply place the resurrected models in coherency (i.e., within 1" of another model) with the rest of the unit.

References: Tomb Kings of Khemri

Universal Rules

#261

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

When moving through the ranks to join the fighting rank, can a character choose its position?

RULING

A character can freely choose any position in the fighting rank, regardless of base contact or not.

References: Moving through the Ranks CRB 208

Universal Special Rules

#1018 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does placing a unit of Ambushers into reserve count as deploying a unit?

RULING

No.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1043 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When are Ambushers placed into reserve and when is this declared?

RULING

If your army includes any Ambushers that you wish to hold in reserve, set those units aside before deployment begins, making it clear to your opponent that they are Ambushers and will be held in reserve, rather than be deployed with the rest of your army.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1084 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can you choose not to roll for the arrival of Ambushers during your Start of Turn sub-phase?

RULING

No. Unless the unit itself or the scenario being played has a special rule that changes the way in which Ambushers arrive, you must roll for their arrival during each of your turns, from round two onwards. However, any special rules that affect the arrival of Ambushers which take effect after the Start of Turn sub-phase but before the Compulsory Moves sub-phase may be used as normal, regardless of the result of the Ambushers roll.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1110 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does the Armour Bane (X) special rule apply to spells cast by a model with the rule, such as Assailment spells, Magic Missiles or Magical Vortexes?

RULING

No.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1130 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a model has Armour Bane (X) listed amongst its special rules (i.e., if the model has the special rule itself rather than a weapon it carries having it), does it apply to Impact Hits or Stomp Attacks?

RULING

Yes.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1149 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Some mounted models have the Counter Charge special rule but others do not, even though they have the same type of mount. Is this intentional?

RULING

Yes. Counter Charge is a rule that represents the skill and ferocity of the rider, not their mount. In other words, not every rider is willing or able to perform a counter charge, regardless of their mount.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1170 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a unit Counter Charges, it rolls D3+1 to determine how far it moves. Is this roll counted as a Charge roll?

RULING

No.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1184 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit charged by two or more enemy units Counter Charges one of them, it may end its movement presenting a different arc to the other charging unit(s). Do those units resolve their charges against those arcs?

RULING

Yes. When a unit Counter Charges, it risks exposing its flanks or rear to the enemy, such are the perils of bravado.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1191 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Drilled unit redress the ranks before making a Counter Charge charge reaction?

RULING

Yes.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1205 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit whose troop type is 'infantry' that has been joined by a character whose troop type is 'cavalry' charges an enemy unit with the Counter Charge special rule, can that unit Counter Charge?

RULING

No. A unit's troop type doesn't change when joined by a character.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1210 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How far does a model with the Random Movement special rule move when making a Counter Charge?

RULING

As stated in the Counter Charge special rule, a model that makes a Counter Charge moves D3+1".

References: Universal Special Rules

#1221 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Drilled unit redress the ranks before Giving Ground?

RULING

Yes. A unit that Gives Ground is not a fleeing unit.

Note that, as mentioned previously, should any part of a unit cross beyond the edge of the battlefield whilst it is Giving Ground, the entire unit is removed from play and counts as having been destroyed. It is intentional that a Drilled unit might be able to avoid this fate.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1224 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can an Evasive unit use that special rule whilst engaged in combat or whilst fleeing?

RULING

No.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1232 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Do effects that modify a model's Movement characteristic also modify how far a model with the Fly (X) special rule can fly?

RULING

Yes. If a model has the Fly (X) special rule, the number given in brackets is essentially a second Movement characteristic. Any effect that modifies one will modify both.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1238 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a model with two versions of the Fly (X) special rule combine both and fly further?

RULING

No. A model that has more than one version of the Fly (X) special rule essentially has two Movement characteristics it can use when flying. Of these, you may use the best.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1244 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit with the Fly (X) special rule is engaged in combat, can it use its 'Fly Movement' characteristic when determining which models are close enough to models within the enemy unit to fight or make supporting attacks?

RULING

No. Models with the Fly (X) special rule only fly whilst moving. In other words, such models are considered to have landed on the ground whilst the fighting takes place, and must use their given Movement characteristic to determine if they are close enough to the enemy to fight.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1248 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a model with a split profile has the Impact Hits (X) special rule, do all parts of the model cause Impact Hits?

RULING

No. Impact Hits are only made by a mount, not by its rider(s). In the case of a chariot, Impact Hits are made by the chariot itself, not by the beasts that draw it. If a rider has their own Impact Hits (X) special rule, these are made separately by the rider.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1252 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a model has Killing Blow or Monster Slayer, does a roll To Wound of a natural 6 cause an enemy to lose all of its remaining Wounds even if that enemy would normally be too tough to wound?

RULING

No. If a model cannot wound an enemy, it cannot kill it.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1255 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Impact Hits and Stomp Attacks cannot be directed against a character that has joined a unit unless that unit has a Unit Strength of five or less. Does this limitation also apply to unit champions?

RULING

Yes. Whilst unit champions are not characters, they function like characters in many ways, and this is one. Impact Hits and Stomp Attacks are indiscriminate, and targeting specific models, like unit champions, is not possible unless there are fewer than five rank and file models in the unit.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1257 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit with Frenzy or Impetuous has two movement characteristics (for example, if it can also Fly), does it have to use the greater when determining if it must declare a charge?

RULING

If it is able to use the greater, then yes, it must (tactically, you might not want it to, but a Frenzied Lord of Chaos on a mighty Dragon doesn't care about your tactics!).

References: Universal Special Rules

#1261 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit that is subject to Frenzy becomes subject to Frenzy again, does it get +2 Attacks?

RULING

No. A unit is either Frenzied or it isn't, multiple instances of Frenzy are not cumulative.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1263 GW FAQ

QUESTION

'War beasts' and 'swarms' Fear models with the Flaming Attacks special rule. Do 'war beasts' and 'swarms' that have the Immune to Psychology special rule Fear models that have the Flaming Attacks special rule?

RULING

Yes. Even though models that cause Fear are normally immune to it, the rule that Swarms and War beasts Fear models with Flaming Attacks is an exception called out in those troop types' unique rules.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1264 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If some models in a unit cause Fear but others do not, do I use the Unit Strength of the whole unit or just that of the models that cause Fear to determine if an enemy unit has a lower Unit Strength?

RULING

Count only the Unit Strength of the models that cause Fear.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1267 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Units with the Motley Crew special rule use the armour value of the 'majority' of models. What if there is an even number of different armour values?

RULING

In such cases, use the better armour value (not including the armour value of any characters or champions that have purchased magic items or unique upgrades to improve their armour).

References: Universal Special Rules

#1269 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens if a unit with the Move through Cover special rule is joined by a character without it?

RULING

Units move at the speed of their slowest model. Therefore, whilst the unit would suffer no penalty for moving through difficult or dangerous terrain, the character would, potentially reducing how far the entire unit can move.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1270 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a unit with Move through Cover discard the highest dice when making a charge roll if charging through terrain?

RULING

No.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1272 GW FAQ

QUESTION

What happens if a weapon is subject to both the Ponderous and Quick Shot special rules?

RULING

The rules effectively cancel one another out, meaning the weapon would suffer a -1 To Hit modifier for Moving and Shooting.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1274 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit with the Random Movement special rule move around or past an enemy unit, out of one arc and into another, before making contact with that unit?

RULING

No. Whilst units that move randomly do not declare charges, if you wish to move one into contact with an enemy unit, it must fulfil the same criteria as any other charging unit during its movement, as detailed on page 126.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1276 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How far does a unit with the Random Movement special rule move when Giving Ground?

RULING

All units move 2" when Giving Ground.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1277 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a model make more Regeneration saves than it has Wounds remaining on its profile?

RULING

No. When a model makes Regeneration saves, it makes one save for each Wound lost.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1278 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit that deploys using the Scouts special rule make a Vanguard move?

RULING

No.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1279 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit of Scouts is deployed completely within my deployment zone, can they be deployed within 12" of the enemy, and can they charge in the first turn?

RULING

No. Regardless of where they are deployed, a unit deployed as Scouts must abide by the rules for deploying as Scouts.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1280 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Are units that deploy using the Scouts special rule counted when determining which player finished deploying their army first?

RULING

Yes.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1281 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a model with a split profile has the Stomp Attacks (X) special rule, do all parts of the model make Stomp Attacks?

RULING

No. Stomp attacks are only made by a mount, not by its rider(s). In the case of a chariot, Stomp Attacks are made by the beasts that draw it or, if there are no beasts, by the chariot itself.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1282 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a Stubborn character joins a unit that is not Stubborn and that unit loses its first combat of the game, does the character remain Stubborn until they have an opportunity to make use of the rule later on?

RULING

No. Stubborn is used the first time a unit loses combat. If a character is unable to use the rule due to being part of a unit that is not Stubborn, the opportunity is lost.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1283 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a unit that does not have the Stupidity special rule is joined by a character that does, the unit becomes subject to the special rule. What happens if the character leaves the unit?

RULING

The unit ceases to be subject to Stupidity the moment the character leaves the unit.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1284 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Swiftstride enables a model to move further during a charge move than its maximum possible charge range. Why is this?

RULING

Because models with this special rule delight in running down cowards who flee before a charge!

References: Universal Special Rules

#1285 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Do models that cause Terror cause it in models that cause Fear?

RULING

No. Models that cause Terror cause Fear in models with the Fear special rule, even though such models are normally immune to Fear.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1286 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If the winning side of a combat includes one or more models that cause Terror, do models on the losing side that cause Fear or Terror suffer the -1 modifier to their Leadership?

RULING

No. Because models that cause Fear or Terror aren't terrified by Terror causing enemies, they do not suffer the effects of Terror.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1287 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Are Wounds lost as a result of a model with Timmm□berrr! falling on a unit counted towards the enemy’s combat result score?

RULING

Yes.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1288 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a character without the Vanguard special rule joins a unit with it during deployment, can the character make a Vanguard move with the unit?

RULING

No. What’s more, if the unit is formed, it will not be able to make a Vanguard move; the presence of a character without the Vanguard special rule within its ranks prevents it. However, if the unit is in Skirmish formation, it can make its Vanguard move as normal, leaving the character behind.

References: Universal Special Rules

#1289 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a character without the Veteran special rule that has joined a unit with the Veteran special rule benefit from it when attempting to use a special rule that requires them to make a Leadership test (Rallying Cry, for example)?

RULING

No. When a character attempts to use a special rule that requires them to make a Leadership test, they must use their own Leadership characteristic and, unless specifically stated otherwise, cannot use any additional special rules they themselves do not have.

References: Universal Special Rules

Unusual Formations

#1037 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Some attacks allow a specific model within a unit to be targeted. Can such an attack be used to break the coherency of a unit of Skirmishers and cause other models to be removed as well?

RULING

No. As stated on page 184, you cannot remove a model from a unit of Skirmishers if doing so would cause the unit to lose coherency. However, if an attack targets a specific model (such as a champion or a character), that model must be removed if the attack reduces it to zero Wounds. In such cases, simply replace the removed model with another model belonging to the same unit, one that could be removed as a casualty, in order to maintain unit coherency.

References: Unusual Formations p182

#1061 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How do I determine the centre of a unit of Skirmishers?

RULING

The centre is the point that is equally distant from the models at the extremities of the group. However, when considering blast templates, the purpose of placing a blast template over the centre of a unit is to ensure a significant number of models are underneath it. In the case of a unit of Skirmishers, this is not always possible. Therefore, you may place the central hole of a blast template over the model closest to the centre of a unit of Skirmishers.

References: Unusual Formations p182

#1093 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Sometimes, when a unit of Skirmishers charges or is charged, some of the models cannot move far enough to form up with the rest of the unit. What happens to those models?

RULING

The unit loses coherency, as described on page 184. This means models belonging to the unit must be removed from play as casualties until the unit becomes coherent.

References: Unusual Formations p182

#1112 GW FAQ

QUESTION

How does a unit of Skirmishers form up when charged by two or more different enemy units from different directions?

RULING

The Skirmishers should form up against the first charging unit to move into contact with them. The remaining enemy units then charge the formed Skirmishers. If any units are unable to complete their charge moves, their charges are failed.

References: Unusual Formations p182

#1142 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Do Skirmishers have flank or rear arcs whilst engaged in combat?

RULING

Whilst Skirmishers do form up when engaged in combat, they are not considered to have flank or rear arcs for the purposes of calculating combat result points.

References: Unusual Formations p182

#1162 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When a unit of Skirmishers becomes engaged in combat and forms up, must any command group models it contains be placed in the fighting rank?

RULING

Yes.

References: Unusual Formations p182

War Machines

#58 Clarification

3 Shooting Phase

QUESTION

If a cannon can see a large target over other models, can it choose a target point that it cannot see due to the presence of intervening models?

RULING

No, a cannon must have LoS to its target point. It could target the edge of the large target's base, but intervening models block LoS to points on the ground. If the cannon is on a hill or is a large target itself, then it can see over intervening models accordingly.

References: Cannon Fire CRB 226

#73 Clarification

3 Shooting Phase

QUESTION

Does a unit need to be fully withn 12" to be save from a Stone Thrower Shot or is partially within sufficient as you always determine thecloses distance for range.

RULING

As soon as the closest part is within 12" the unit can't be shot

References: Measurement CRB 92Minimum Range CRB 212Bombardment CRB 224

#113 Clarification

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

Some weapons shoot like a war machine, such as the Cygor's Hurl attack and the Steam Tank's Steam Cannon. Both state, "If a 'Misfire' is rolled on the Artillery dice, this model loses a single Wound (instead of rolling on a Misfire table)." If a Misfire is rolled, is the attack still successful?

RULING

No. Not explicitly RAW. However, a Misfire result does not provide a numeric value that you need to carry out the attack. All results on a Misfire table result in the attack failing, and this seems like a reasonable extrapolation.

References: Empire Steam Tank Steam Cannon FF 69Beastmen Brayherds Cybor Hurl Attack RH 107

#187

4-1 Combat Phase Choose Combat & Determine Who Can Fight

QUESTION

Does the multiple wounds (X) special rule work against war machine (crews) in combat?

RULING

The crew is a single profile that loses attacks as it loses wounds. Multiple wounds works against it.

References: Split Profile (War Machine) CRB 197

#257

0 Faction Rules

QUESTION

If a Doom Diver fires indirectly, do you allow for a -d3 instead of the ballistic skill and then another d3 directional correction?

RULING

Yes, the second part of the Doom Diver Rule referes to the indirect fire part of the bombardment rule of 225, so the first part gets applied too.

References: Orcs and Goblins

#327

3 Shooting Phase

QUESTION

Can you shoot a model with the Column of Fire Rule in a way that you hit a combat?

RULING

No, similar to normal cannons, since you aim with a weapon that has this rule, you cannot risk shooting in a way that you hit combat (see the wording of "intended target")

References: Fire Throwers CRB 229

#1020 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If the Wounds characteristic of a war machine and its crew are different, which do I use to determine Unit Strength?

RULING

In such cases, use the Wounds characteristic of the crew.

References: War Machines p222

#1050 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When shooting a cannon, a line of sight is required to the target point, but what about the strike point?

RULING

A cannon does not require a line of sight to the strike point. However, if anything that would stop a cannonball from bouncing (see 5. Crunch, on page 227) lies between the target point and the strike point, the cannonball will hit it and stop. In other words, you cannot use a high result on the Artillery dice to 'glitch' a cannonball through an impregnable obstacle.

References: War Machines p222

#1092 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a cannon that is on a hill target a point on the ground if woods, a building or a hill lies between it and that point?

RULING

No, a cannon cannot shoot over such obstacles, even if it is on a hill. However, a stone thrower can if it chooses to fire indirectly.

References: War Machines p222

#1107 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a cannon target a point on the ground if another unit lies between it and that point?

RULING

Not unless that cannon is on a hill and the unit is not. However, as above, a stone thrower can if it chooses to fire indirectly.

References: War Machines p222

#1128 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a cannon be shot in such a way as to hit an enemy unit that is engaged in combat with a friendly unit?

RULING

No. Page 143 of the rulebook makes it clear that, except in rare cases, units cannot shoot enemy units that are engaged in combat. In the case of cannon, this means the target point cannot be placed in such a way as to risk the cannonball hitting a friendly unit, or an enemy unit engaged in combat with a friendly unit.

References: War Machines p222

#1148 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can any type of cannon fire grapeshot?

RULING

Only cannons or weapons that fire using the 'Cannon Fire' special rule may also fire 'Grapeshot', as described on page 227 of the Warhammer: The Old World rulebook. This is in addition to any other special rules or additional modes of fire the weapon may have.

References: War Machines p222

#1168 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a war machine shoot using the Ballistic Skill of a character that has joined it?

RULING

No. Because a war machine and its crew are treated as a single model, you must use the crew's BS.

References: War Machines p222

#1180 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Some war machines can have additional models attached to them, such as the Orc Bully. If the war machine is destroyed, are any attached models also destroyed?

RULING

Yes.

References: War Machines p222

Warhammer Armies

#1003 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Do army special rules extend to any mercenaries I include?

RULING

Unless stated otherwise, no.

References: Warhammer Armies p276

#1040 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If my opponent and I have agreed to play a 2,000 points game but my army is not exactly 2,000 points (it's 1,997 points, for example), can I take two of something limited to 0-1 per 1,000 points by the army composition list I'm using?

RULING

Yes. Such limitations are based on the size of the game you are playing rather than the exact points value of your army.

References: Warhammer Armies p276

#1076 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When does a detachment determine which arc of an enemy unit it will charge into when making a supporting charge?

RULING

When it is moved, at the end of the Charge Moves sub-phase.

References: Warhammer Armies p276

#1106 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does an allied contingent have to abide by the restrictions given in the army composition list it is drawn from?

RULING

Yes. An allied contingent is a small army within a large army, made using a Grand Army or Army of Infamy composition list. Within a 2,000 points army, for example, an allied contingent of 500 points would have to spend at least 125 points on Core units, could spend no more than 250 points on characters, and would be unable to include any units limited to 0-1 per 1,000 points.

References: Warhammer Armies p276

#1139 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Do the points I spend on Core units within an allied contingent count towards the minimum percentage of Core units overall?

RULING

No.

References: Warhammer Armies p276

#1155 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does a spell cast on a Regimental Unit affect its Detachments, or vice versa?

RULING

No, spells that affect a unit only affect the unit they are cast on.

References: Warhammer Armies p276

Warhammer Battles

#1029 GW FAQ

QUESTION

The rulebook lists the minimum size of battlefield as 30" x 44" for games of up to 1,000 points, 44" x 60" for 1,001 to 3,000 points and 44" x 90" for games of 3,001 points or above. Do we have to use these sizes?

RULING

No. These are the minimum recommended sizes. The normal size battlefield for a game of between 2,000 and 3,000 points is 48" x 72" (4' x 6') and players are encouraged to use this. The minimum sizes are based on the folding card battlefields Games Workshop produces. These are ideal when space is an issue or for smaller games. For example, we prefer a 44" x 60" battlefield for a game of 1,000 or 1,500 points, rather than the more traditional 48" x 48" battlefield. We find the smaller, rectangular shape more pleasing.

References: Warhammer Battles p284

#1067 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When deploying armies, must units be placed completely within their deployment zone?

RULING

Yes.

References: Warhammer Battles p284

Warhammer: The Old World Matched Play Guide

#1012 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a unit is limited to, for example, 0-3 per specific type of character, or 0-3 per 1,000 points, how many such units can I field in a 2,000 points army at an event using Combined Arms army composition?

RULING

You can field up to three per character in the first example, and up to six in total in the second example. Combined Arms composition rules only restrict units with no other restriction on them. If a unit has any form of restriction, that takes precedence.

Note, however, that 1+ is not a restriction, it’s a minimum requirement.

References: Warhammer: The Old World Matched Play Guide

#1046 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a unit control more than one object on the battlefield? For example, can a unit control a special feature, a battlefield objective, and a secondary objective such as a baggage train, all at the same time?

RULING

No. If a unit is in a position to control two or more such objects, you must choose one for it to control.

References: Warhammer: The Old World Matched Play Guide

#1077 GW FAQ

QUESTION

When using Domination as a secondary objective, do you get the Victory Points for having more than double the enemy's Unit Strength in a table quarter if there are no enemy models in that quarter?

RULING

No. To be more than double the enemy’s Unit Strength, the enemy has to have some models in the quarter. If they have none and you do, you gain the VP bonus for that achievement instead.

References: Warhammer: The Old World Matched Play Guide

Warriors of Chaos

#1027 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can the Infernal Puppet be used against a Bound spell?

RULING

Yes.

References: Warriors of Chaos

#1073 GW FAQ

QUESTION

If a character with the Mark of Nurgle (for example) is mounted on a chariot with the Mark of Chaos Undivided, does the chariot benefit from the character's Mark, or do I have to pay the points to give the chariot the Mark of Nurgle for it to gain the same benefits?

RULING

If you want a chariot mount to have the same benefits from a Mark of Chaos that its rider has, you have to pay the points to give the chariot the Mark of Chaos.

References: Warriors of Chaos

Weapons of War

#1004 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Do special rules conferred by a model's weapon apply to attacks made by that model's mount?

RULING

No. Any rules conferred by a weapon, be it magical or mundane, apply only to attacks made with that weapon. This can include, but is not limited to, rules unique to a specific type of weapon, special rules that apply to a particular weapon, or special rules that apply to a magic weapon. For example, if a Wizard is armed with the Sword of Swiftness, attacks made with that weapon have the Strikes First special rule, but the Wizard cannot claim that wielding the weapon allows them to cast Assailment spells at Initiative 10.

To give another example, if a model has a special rule unique to its faction that grants additional rules to a hand weapon (the crew of an Orc Boar Chariot have the Choppas special rule, for example), that rule applies only to actual hand weapons carried by riders or chariot crew, not to weapons belonging to mounts or draft animals that 'count as' hand weapons.

References: Weapons of War p212

#1059 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Some monsters have weapons with notes that state they must make, or may choose to make, one attack, or one additional attack, with that weapon in combat. Can they make more than one attack with such weapons?

RULING

No. If it is noted on a weapon's profile that the model may or must make a specific number of attacks with that weapon, normal attacks or otherwise, that's how many attacks it makes with that weapon.

References: Weapons of War p212

#1089 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a model armed with two hand weapons choose to fight with just one hand weapon?

RULING

Yes. As noted on page 213, unless stated otherwise, all models are assumed to be equipped with a hand weapon. A model with two has, by definition, two and may choose to fight with just one, foregoing the Extra Attacks (+1) special rule in favour of some other benefit.

References: Weapons of War p212

#1114 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a missile weapon be used in combat?

RULING

No.

References: Weapons of War p212

Wood Elf Realms

#1023 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Does the Waystalker’s Hawk-eyed Archer rule apply to magic items that allow the bearer to cast a Magic Missile?

RULING

No, it applies only to the Waystalker’s Asrai longbow, or to ranged magic weapons.

References: Wood Elf Realms

#1060 GW FAQ

QUESTION

Can a Wood Elf Realms army that includes an allied contingent place an additional wood using the Woodland Ambush rule?

RULING

Yes. Note however that an allied contingent of Wood Elves taken as part of another army cannot.

References: Wood Elf Realms

#1086 GW FAQ

QUESTION

The Bow of Loren allows a Wood Elf character to make a number of shots equal to their Attacks characteristic. How does this interact with Enchanted Arrows?

RULING

When firing an Enchanted Arrow it is assumed the model is firing only once, as is the norm. Therefore, one of the shots fired from the Bow of Loren can be made using an Enchanted Arrow, the other shots are resolved using ordinary (i.e., not Enchanted) arrows.

References: Wood Elf Realms